Instructor's Guide Overview

We've designed your Sonlight Instructor's Guide (IG) to make your educational experience as straightforward and helpful as possible. We have carefully organized your materials to help you and your children get the most out of the subjects covered. For help reading your schedule, see the "How to Use the Schedule" page just before Week 1.

Your IG includes an entire 36-week schedule of all the books you'll read, followed by notes, assignments, readings, and other educational activities. For specific organizational tips, topics and skills addressed, the timeline figure schedule, and other suggestions for you, take a look at some of the great resources in Section Three so you'll know what's there and can turn to this section when needed.

If you are new to Sonlight this year, please look in Section Four, where you'll find helpful resources for new users including tips for getting organized, ideas for adapting the curriculum to your needs, record keeping suggestions, an overview of the structure of your Instructor's Guide, and more.

What helpful features can you expect from your IG?

First, everything you need is located right after your schedule each week. If a book requires additional information about a topic or concept, it's easy to find a note immediately after your schedule page under the day the reading is scheduled.

Second, using the blank maps provided, students will plot assigned locations for each book. Map answer keys are located in Section Three of the Parent's Instructor's Guide.

Third, your Instructor's Guide includes a complete ready-to-use 5-Day schedule, which has been carefully planned to optimize use of the curriculum resources.

Fourth, "To Discuss After You Read" sections help you hone in on the basics of a book so you can easily gauge how well your children have comprehended the book. The questions are numbered to help you reference between the Parent Guide and the Student Guide.

Fifth, "Vocabulary" includes terms related to cultural literacy and general usage terms [words printed in bold] in one easy-to-find place.

Sixth, notes labeled "Rationale" contain information about specific books to help you know why we've selected a particular resource and what we trust children will gain from reading it. Other notes marked with "Note to Mom or Dad" will provide you with insights on more difficult concepts or content from some books.

Finally, don't forget to have fun as you learn at home together!

About "History of the Christian Church"

If you and your children are interested in discovering more about 2,000 years of Christian heritage, 220 has everything you need. You'll journey through the history of God's kingdom, uncovering the story of Jesus and exploring key questions. What has God done throughout history? How is He moving today? How are we part of a global body of Christ that extends beyond our local churches and denominations? 220 underscores the importance of church history, giving us a more accurate perspective on Christianity.

Several wonderful resources support the exciting goals of 220 including The Story of Christianity, The 100 Most Important Events of Christian History, The Church of the East, and From Jerusalem to Irian Jaya. The latter resource offers a fact-filled tour of the history of Christian missions including the early centuries in the Roman Empire, 20th century martyrs, third world missions, new methods and strategies for reaching the world, and more.

Bible

At Sonlight we take the Bible seriously. We believe the Bible is the authoritative, inspired Word of God: "All Scripture is God-breathed and is useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting and training in righteousness, so that the servant of God may be thoroughly equipped for every good work" (2 Timothy 3:16-17, NIV 2011).

As a Christian curriculum company, our desire is to see you and your children grow in spiritual maturity in Christ so that you can make a positive difference in God's kingdom. If you have your own Bible program you are following as a family, we don't want you to feel as though you must drop it and stick to our approach exclusively. But maybe you'd like to give our method a try to see if you like it and if it fits well with what you'd like to accomplish.

You'll find Instructor's Guide Notes that will introduce you to the Bible topics you and your children will cover. Please look these over ahead of time so you know what to expect. In some sections we've also included Notes to address common questions or concerns. Whenever an issue arises where there are multiple viable explanations, we do our best to present all of them fairly and without telling you or your children which option to believe (we leave those matters up to you, as the parent, to discuss with your children as you see fit).

In other words, we try to stick to what the Puritan Richard Baxter called "mere Christianity"—the core truths the church has always held throughout its history. With that in mind, Sonlight does have roots in Protestantism, so we don't specifically cover or assign readings from Bible books found in Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox Bibles that are omitted from Protestant Bibles. We are, however, respectful of various Christian traditions including Protestant, Orthodox, and Catholic.

Enhancing 200's emphasis on the history of the Christian Church are many important books such as the Josh McDowell classic More Than a Carpenter. This short and profound modern-day work provides a reader-friendly introduction to the reliability of the New Testament, the historical person of Christ, and our personal response to his claims. In What if Jesus Had Never Been Born you and your children will realize the critically important role Christianity has played in the history of the world via its benefits and influence on many areas of life. Other books add to the excitement of Christian truth and its importance including The Jesus I Never Knew and The Westminster Shorter Catechism.

Our prayer is that you and your children will develop a healthy approach to the Bible, its study, and its application to your own lives on a daily basis. To this end, each of our programs seeks to integrate the Bible as a key aspect of learning and spiritual growth.

Bible/Apologetics—Introduction for Students

We believe you need to be prepared for the intellectual challenges to your faith that you will receive in the years to come. Indeed, we believe you should not only be prepared to face challenges; but also, to be so well trained that you can challenge others in their faith (or lack thereof).

The Westminster Catechism is only one (of many Protestant catechisms) that was produced in that period of heavy theological ferment from about 1520 to 1650. It includes some idiosyncrasies that many evangelicals will object to. Your parents may wish to use a catechism that more nearly matches their own views. At the same time, we feel very comfortable recommending that you use The Westminster Shorter Catechism as a jumping-off point for more thorough discussions, and teaching from your parents’ perspective.

You will notice we do this ourselves. We do it in our history studies; we do it also at many points with the Westminster Shorter Catechism (or at least the study guide!): we challenge, argue with, and critique our main textbooks. You can—and should—do the same. Just because you are in junior high or above and are excellent readers, doesn’t mean you are “on your own.” Learn from your parents’ years of experience and thought!

Each week you will be asked to read a certain set of lessons in the catechism, then to answer certain questions. We believe the best answers to the study guide questions should be presented in writing. If you disagree with Williamson’s answer or if you do not like the question, please write out how and/or why you disagree or feel offended. In this way, you will be sharpening your own perception and discernment skills.

📖 Note to Mom or Dad 🌐 Map Point 🕒 Timeline Suggestion

Besides The Westminster Catechism, we have included three “apologetics” works.

Kennedy’s What if Jesus Had Never Been Born? is what we call a historical apologetic; it seeks to lay to rest many of the historical claims made against the Church. In fact, it takes the offensive and shows the great cultural achievements of Christians and Christianity through the centuries.

More Than a Carpenter offers a pretty rigorous presentation of basic evidences for Christian faith in a popular style.

The Jesus I Never Knew is a unique study of Jesus and the life he lived, written by the thought-provoking Philip Yancey. Our prayer is that this work enables you to meet Jesus in a new way.

More Than a Carpenter

Day ALL Chapters 1–2

Over the course of this week, read Chapters 1 and 2.

Memorization

Day 1 Matthew 1:21

During this year’s study you will have the opportunity to memorize and quote various texts of Scripture. The memory verses are taken from the Bible reading list for each week, and more often than not, are key verses in the portion of the New Testament you will read for the week (the assignments for Week 1 and Week 36 have three memory verses, but all the other weekly assignments have only one memory verse). We want to encourage three things with reference to your memory work:

Be diligent in the memory work. Take seriously the value of committing passages of Scripture to memory. You will be surprised at the end of the year how much Scripture you have memorized.

Don't just memorize words, but endeavor to understand the meaning of the words you memorize. If you come across terms you do not understand, look them up. In order fully to understand what a verse means, it is at least helpful (if not essential) to consider the context in which your memory verse resides. Try to read before and after to see the "contextual setting" of the verse(s).

You will be assigned to quote your memory verses aloud at the end of Weeks 12, 24, and 36. Preparation for these quoting assignments will enable you to commit to memory some important biblical passages, and quoting the passage aloud will enable you to practice some public speaking skills.

31. What was the missionary strategy of Paul and his associates? ➔
32. Where, and by whom, was Paul converted (see Acts 9)? ➔
33. What general areas did Paul visit on his three missionary journeys? ➔
34. Where was the first European church established? ➔
35. What was the Jerusalem Conference about? ➔
36. And the decision? ➔
37. Who destroyed the Jewish Temple in Jerusalem, and when? ➔

See the reading in The 100 Most Important Events in Christian History for more complete information.

38. Some Christians (primarily Roman Catholics) believe not only that Peter was the first bishop of Rome, but also that, based on Matthew 16:18, he was the first in an unbroken line of apostolic succession that extends to the present pope.¹ Others (notably Protestants) disagree. Protestants in general interpret the passage in Matthew differently. As you read Matthew 16:18, do you believe it teaches that Peter was to be the first bishop of Rome (the pope)? (Before you answer this question, take a careful look at the context—Matthew 16:13–20, at least.) If you don't believe it teaches that Peter was to be the first pope, then what do you believe it does teach? What proof can you give for your answer one way or the other?

1. For a list of all the popes and biographical sketches on each one, see www.newadvent.org/cathen/12272b.htm (accessed 2002).

Note to Mom or Dad: Please assist your student with this answer. Ask your priest, pastor, minister, or other theologically educated person to help you. This question has generations of debate attached to it. It is a “hermeneutical” (method of interpretation) question, the answer to which seems, in my opinion, based more on culture, tradition, and interpretation of scripture than on the plain teaching of the text. AND ... the answer does not affect the deity or lordship of Jesus, nor the salvation of believers. However, it does affect how the church is organized and led. Please be fair in your search. Don’t just take the “party line” of your church, but “dig it out.”

39. Is there room for both interpretations, or must it be one way or the other?
40. The authors of your book focus on three major first century cities as primary points from which the Christian faith spread. What are they? ➔

To Discuss After You Read

41. Tucker tells the story of Thomas. Of all the “missionary disciples,” she says, his story has the most historical support. And, in sum, what is his story? ➔
42. Tucker says the greatest missionary of the first century church was undoubtedly who? ➔
43. In what ways does Tucker suggest St. Paul could or should be an example for modern missionaries? ➔
44. In your opinion, was St. Paul “successful?” ➔

Tucker mentions the tradition that Paul was martyred along with Peter and many other Christians during the persecution by Roman Emperor Nero. That is the prevailing tradition, but it is also believed by some that Paul was able to live much longer and do mission work in Europe (particularly Spain—see Romans 15:24, 28).

Current Events

Day ALL

Three reports this week

Do three reports; at least two of international concern.

Current Events—Notes for Students

We believe you need to learn that world affairs—matters of social, political, economic, and cultural concern—are appropriate for your interest. You should be informed about these matters, and ought to be forming biblically-appropriate opinions about them. As citizens of God’s Kingdom, you are called upon to be gracious (and, therefore, informed) ambassadors to the peoples and kingdoms of this world.

The “textbook” for your study of current events should be articles found in current newspapers and magazines.²

Why study current events? There are many reasons. One is to help you become familiar with the names and events that are in the news. When you become familiar with these names and events, you are better able in the future to read articles about the same people or the same or related events. This in turn allows you to know what our brothers and sisters are experiencing throughout the world, and what they might appreciate us praying about—to pray knowledgeably and effectively for our brothers and sisters elsewhere around the world.

Another reason: by reading news from other parts of the world, we get to see our local situation in a broader context. It’s similar to what we gain by studying history. We see, for instance, that we are not alone in some of our experiences: “We don’t have it so bad.” Then again, we see that some people enjoy certain blessings that we do not. As the Apostle Paul said concerning the Jews as they looked at the Christians, perhaps we will be stirred to a righteous envy. Then again, a study of current events may help us see that we enjoy certain blessings that others don’t. Perhaps we will learn to keep our mouths shut when we think we “have it so bad.” Finally, a study of current events—as a study of history in general—can give us the opportunity to learn from other people’s mistakes. ■

2. Many people wonder what magazines or newspapers we might suggest that could provide a broader, more well-rounded perspective on current events than those to which they are currently subscribing. See Section Three for a brief listing.

2. In your view, which of these “reasons for growth” is most important in your time where you live. Why? After all, the Kingdom moves and grows through different means in different times and cultures.
3. You will see in your studies this year how the position and authority of church leaders have been, and continues to be, an issue of controversy in the church. The authors say that the preeminence of bishops and other church leaders was unchallenged in the early church. Read the following passages of New Testament Scripture and give your view, based on these texts, of the importance of bishops, elders, and other church leaders in the early church: Acts 14:23; Acts 20:17, 28–31; 1 Timothy 3:1–13; Titus 1:5–9; Hebrews 13:17. ➔

1. What were the two main issues of the internal theological debates in the church at the beginning of the third century? ➔
2. Would you consider these issues major or trivial? Were they worth people getting upset over? Explain. ➔
3. The authors of your book simply state, they don’t even attempt to prove, that “[t]he Bible teaches that God is one, and that Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are God.” How would you try to “prove” that the idea of the Trinity (one God in three persons) is found in Scripture? (Check out, for one God, Deuteronomy 6:4; for all three persons mentioned: Luke 3:21-22. And there are certainly verses about the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit individually.)

Early on in the church’s history, the “winning” side in any debate “merely” anathematized (cursed) and excommunicated the “losing” side. Within a few hundred years (after the church became supported by the state), “losers” were no longer “merely” anathematized and excommunicated; they were dealt with by the “secular arm” as well and could be banished or even executed.

Whether someone believes—or even knows to believe—in the concept of the Trinity; to my belief, that is not a salvation issue. (Did the thief on the cross understand, much less know about the concept of the Trinity?)

4. Yet ... These things matter, don’t they? The concept of the Trinity, or the age of the earth (a more current debate): shouldn’t there be some point where we will draw the line? Has the modern church lost something by becoming as relaxed as it has over doctrinal matters? Has it gained something? ➔

16. Who was the first “Christian” Emperor? ➔

Fr. Alexander Schmemmann comments:

The descriptions of [Constantine’s conversion] closest to it in time mention no vision of the Cross nor the traditional words, “In this sign conquer.” They say merely that he was led in a dream to have a new sign inscribed on his weapons. This done, he conquered Maxentius and entered Rome.

Later the basic narrative began to grow into a legend, not without the help of Constantine himself. One point is beyond question: the sign he saw and under which he won his decisive victory was in his own mind a Christian symbol, and from that time on he counted himself a Christian.

Did he actually become one?

Not until twenty-five years after the battle of the Milvian Bridge, did he receive baptism, the only symbol the Church accepts of becoming a Christian... [But] then what had he been before? ...

In Constantine’s mind the Christian faith, or rather, faith in Christ, had not come to him through the Church, but had been bestowed personally and directly for his victory over the enemy... Consequently the victory he had won with the help of the Christian God had placed the emperor—and thereby the empire as well—under the protection of the Cross and in direct dependence upon Christ.

This also meant, however, that Constantine was converted, not as a man, but as an emperor. [From his perspective,] Christ Himself had sanctioned his power and made him His intended representative,¹ and through Constantine’s person He bound the empire to Himself by special bonds.

... All the ambiguity of the “age of Constantine” in Church history result[s] from the primary, initial paradox that the first Christian emperor was a Christian outside the Church, and [yet] the Church silently but with full sincerity and faith accepted and recognized him.[!]²

1. As Schmemmann points out, the Roman emperor had, in the popular thinking of that day, become “the connecting link between God and the world, while the state was the earthly reflection of divine law.”

24. What is the Nicene Creed? ➔

Note concerning “heresy” and “orthodoxy”: Your authors make a slightly strange comment when they say that “[m]any theologians ... veered away from orthodox views... . Such heretical teaching prompted the Council of Ephesus to be convened.”—To make such statements, the authors must speak from the perspective of people who live long after the Council, because before the Council it was not at all clear what was “orthodox” and/or what was “heretical.” We know now which views were declared heretical and which views were declared orthodox. But these declarations were made at the Council itself. It wasn’t as if the Council merely reasserted what other recognized authorities had said before.

Note concerning Nestorius and Nestorianism: We will be studying the so-called Nestorian Church over the next few weeks. I think you need to understand just a bit of what your authors are saying about what Nestorius is supposed to have taught. They say Nestorius “appeared to (Crestwood, NY: St. Vladimir’s Seminary Press, [1963] 1977), pp. 65–66.

3. The original form of the Creed of Nicea, although amplified since, reads as follows: “We believe in one God, the Father Almighty, maker of all things, both visible and invisible; and in one Lord, Jesus Christ, the Son of God, Only begotten of the Father, that is to say, of the substance of the Father, God of God and Light of Light, very God of very God, begotten, not made, being of one substance with the Father, by whom all things were made, both things in heaven and things on earth; who, for us men and for our salvation, came down and was made flesh, was made man, suffered, and rose again on the third day, went up into the heavens, and is to come again to judge both the quick and the dead; and in the Holy Ghost.”

argue that there were two persons in Christ, rather than ... that there was a single person, both God and man.”— Please see how complicated this gets! We just read about “persons” vs. “substance.” Part of what came into play in Nestorius’ case was a difference in preferred terminology among various theologians. Some theologians preferred Greek-based words; others preferred Latin-based words. In both cases, the “equivalent” words had a lot of overlap of meaning, but (as is usually the case when one translates from one language into another), the overlap wasn’t perfect. Certain terms held connotations that some people didn’t like. . . . The crux of the case for Nestorius: he said that the eternal God couldn’t possibly be born, certainly not by a woman. When a person is born, it means they come into being. But God existed before Mary existed, so in what sense could she be said to be the Mother of God? In essence, he said, “If the person who uses the term is very careful to define what he means, I have no objection to the term ‘Mother of God.’ But it would be better,” he said, “if we would normally refer to Mary as the ‘Mother of Christ’—who was both God and man together. . . .”—The arguments waxed hot. Personalities got involved. I’m afraid both sides in the controversy were more interested in “proving a point” than in expressing or granting Christian charity to their opponents. . . .—We will learn more.

- Digging Deeper: There are obviously differing traditions concerning communion in the churches today. Do you know how your church’s beliefs and practices concerning communion are similar to or different from those of other churches? (For example: who is permitted to partake of the elements? Is anyone in particular not permitted to partake? Is everyone who is permitted, permitted to ingest both bread and wine? Do you use unleavened bread? Cracker/wafers? Leavened bread? What about the drink: is it fermented? Do you drink from the same cup as other members of the congregation or do you each drink from your own cup? How often do you celebrate? Who officiates: only an ordained clergyman? An unordained man? A woman?

A young person? What language is used? Do you follow a prescribed form, or can the leader speak according to whim? ...) Do you know how your church’s tradition is different from the communion tradition in other churches? Do you have any idea why the various traditions are different?

- What did Ambrose of Milan do that demonstrated the church’s power over the state for the first time? ➡
- In the United States, we pride ourselves on the “separation of church and state.” Yet church and state always impact one another one way or another, either directly or indirectly. Since the mutual impact is inescapable, which way would you prefer to have things: church officially over the state, state officially over the church, or neither one over the other, but both affecting one another informally? Do you think your preference is workable?

Note on Monasticism: Morton M. Hunt gives us a clear picture of the kind of lives these monks and ascetics lived:

Some lived in huts or caves, but the more devout preferred dry wells, the deserted dens of beasts, and tombs. Most refrained from washing, and prized their crusted, malodorous state. A monk named Arsenius wove palm leaves, and refused to change the nauseous water in which he steeped them year after year, so as to add stench to his other discomforts; the monk Macarius ate nothing but raw desert herbs for seven years; and the monk Besarion did not lie down while sleeping for forty years. The most famous was Saint Simeon Stylites, who, it is often pointed out, spent thirty years on top of a sixty-foot pillar; it is less often mentioned (though equally true) that he also accumulated spiritual credit by allowing himself to become a mass of clotted and ulcerated filth, and that he bound a rope around his waist so tightly as to produce a maggot-infested putrefaction. Worms filled his bed, and fell from him as he walked; sometimes he replaced them, saying: “Eat what God has given you!”

In the Verba Seniorum, a collection of anecdotes and maxims of the desert fathers, a young monk tormented by sexual daydreams asks a wise old monk: “I entreat thee to explain to me how thou hast never been harried by lust.” The old man replies: “Since the time that I became a monk I have never given myself my fill of bread, nor of water, nor of sleep, and tormenting myself with appetite for these things whereby we are fed, I was not suffered to feel the stings of lust.”⁴

Tertullian: an early Christian author who used Latin instead of Greek in arguments about Christian doctrine and provided Christian thought with new Latin vocabulary. Visit our IG Links page for more information 🔗.

Cyprian: martyr who led Christians in North Africa during persecution by the Roman emperors Decius and Valerian.

To Discuss After You ReadAbout Origen: Fr. Schmemmann comments:

For Origen martyrdom meant more than confession of Christ in the presence of one's persecutors. It was the whole life of a Christian, which in this world can only be the "narrow way" if he is to strive for evangelical perfection... His desire to follow the teachings of the Gospel to the letter led him, as is known, even to emasculation [cutting off his genitals in hopes of ridding himself of sexual desire]...

When he was very young he assumed the office of instructor, whose duty was to explain the Scriptures to new converts... "I would wish you to use all the strength of your mind for the advantage of Christianity," ... [he wrote] to his disciple Gregory Thaumaturgus. "To achieve this I desire you to take from Greek philosophy those spheres of knowledge which are potentially an introduction to Christianity, and whatever information from geometry and astronomy may serve to explain the sacred books; that what philosophers say of geometry, music, grammar, rhetoric, astronomy—namely that they are handmaidens of philosophy—may be said as well of philosophy itself in relation to Christianity."

... [In] the interpretation of the Scriptures ... Origen struck out on new paths... According to Origen, ... the Old Testament reveals the New, and the New reveals the coming kingdom of God "when God will be all in all."

... [Origen] was the first to formulate a systematically Christocentric [Christ-centered] conception of the Old Testament.⁵

... Origen ended his long and righteous life as a "confessor"—one who bore witness to Christ under torture—dying from injuries suffered during the persecutions of Decius. His longing for martyrdom, which had never slackened since his childhood, was satisfied.⁶

Schmemmann concludes:

While [Origen's] figure is unusually attractive and his example inspiring, ... we cannot overlook the danger of his approach to the Bible. ... [When he went to the extreme,] each word acquired an incalculable number of meanings, some of them extremely fantastic. ... [Further,] he rejected the clear doctrine of the creation of the world from nothingness. ... According to [him], the world evolves from God and returns to Him. ...⁷

About Tertullian: Michael A. Smith writes that "[Tertullian] is the first great Christian in the early history of the church whom succeeding ages would not canonize [declare a saint] but dare not condemn."⁸

As your book points out, Tertullian was one of the Church's leading theologians, providing us with many of the Latin words we use even today: "sacrament," "resurrection," "penitence," "Trinity," and "person" (in relation to God). In fact, the name "New Testament" was coined by him!

But, of course, Tertullian also joined that semi-charismatic and, by his time, ultra-conservative group called the Montanists and "from his vantage-point he scourged the remainder of the churches for their sins (real and imagined). It is said that in his last years he left the Montanists and founded his own sect. The Tertullianists survived as a distinct group until the fourth century, when they were readmitted into fellowship with mainstream Christianity, as their particular opinions were not considered heretical enough to exclude them."⁹

5. i.e., he was the first to look for images of Christ, or what theologians call "types" of Christ, in the Old Testament. See the examples of such typological preaching in Comby, p. 66—where Jericho becomes "a figure of this world" and "Joshua foreshadowed the coming of Christ. When Christ came, he sent out his apostles, as Joshua had sent out the priests. ..."

Tertullian is best remembered for his apologetic [defensive] writings, which, to put it mildly, might be called "energetic." Smith writes:

[Tertullian] tears the Roman legal procedure to shreds, pointing out its glaring inconsistencies when dealing with Christians. He demands why Christians alone are not allowed to speak in their own defense. He questions the reasoning of judges who torture other suspects to obtain the truth, but torture Christians to obtain a denial. ... He refutes the allegations of "secret crimes" by describing Christian meetings; yet even here he cannot miss a chance for a sly dig at Roman officialdom. He remarks, in an aside, that Christian church leaders are appointed because of their merit, not because (as with pagan priesthods) they have paid for the honor!¹⁰

Tertullian the doctrinal writer ... uses every weapon in his barrister's [lawyer's] armory. ... He aims to refute [heretics] at every step of their argument, wanting to win every way—rather like the man facing a charge of defamatory language, who swore that he didn't say it, but that if he did it was privileged conversation, and anyway it was true!¹¹

Tertullian's works show clearly the way which North African Christianity would take, a way of enthusiasm, martyrdom and heated controversy. But it was a way with its own particular attractiveness.¹²

43. How was baptism in the early church similar to, and how was it different from, baptism as you are familiar with it in your own church? Talk not just about the ceremony, but, far more, about the preparation and requirements, the understood meaning of baptism, etc.
44. To my knowledge, no Protestant denomination has a practice called penance or related to penance. Is this good or bad? (Discuss this question from both a biblical and practical perspective. Also, keep in mind the historical context. The Church faces persecution—or potential persecution. How can you know whether you should trust someone?)
45. From what you have been taught in the past, how can you tell a true (or the true) church when you see it?
46. What do you see as the strengths and/or weaknesses of Irenaeus, Bishop of Lyons' statements concerning how you can know the true Church (pp. 62–63)?

Why You Will Find Contradictions in History

We at Sonlight hear from customers who are confused by contradictions they find in our history books. You might read something in one of our books, and then see the opposite, or at least something different, in another book, on television, or from another source that contradicts what you read.

Debbie, a Sonlight user, put it this way:

I guess I am just a little disappointed that the information may not be accurate that we are reading to our children. I would have thought the information would have been researched before being used in one of the curriculums....

The problem is that often there is no way to find out the “right” answer. We cannot call up George Washington, Napoleon, or Julius Caesar. We can’t ask them directly what really happened during their lives and, even if we could, they would only give us their own biased view of events.

So, the only way we can know about what happened in their lives is to read reports that were written at the time, and read research that historians have done since.

Unfortunately, the research and reports often don’t agree. One source will say one thing happened, and another will say something completely different happened.

For example, if you research William Shakespeare, there are so many different reports of what he was like, where he lived, what he did and didn’t do—like write plays!—that finding the historical truth is impossible. Some people even argue that Shakespeare never existed at all!

Even though books will often speak authoritatively about exactly what his life was like, no one really knows for sure.

So how do you know what is true? How do you know what is right to teach your children?

We recommend that you teach all the sides of a story as well as you know how. Help your children understand that history is not always black and white. So maybe you’ll say to your children: “We’re really not sure what happened here. There are a bunch of reports, but they don’t all agree with each other. Some say this happened because _____... Others say that’s not what happened, but rather this did because _____. What do you think?” Even more importantly: “Why do you think that?”

While such statements and questions may seem to make things more confusing (to remove the “absolute truth”), you are actually teaching your children to think critically, to look at every side of an issue, to evaluate what they think is right, and to explain reasons for why they think as they do. These are all important skills to learn!

Your children might end up disagreeing with you about what really happened. Remember: that’s ok. It’s key that they explain the reasons behind their viewpoints and argue their positions logically. There are a lot of very smart people who disagree with each other about how things happened in history; so it is all right for you and your children to end up with different opinions.

Try to be patient with your children and with yourself as you experiment in this new style of learning. It may seem easier to say, “This is the way it happened. Memorize these facts and know what is true and false.” But, by digging deeper, you will help broaden your children’s perspectives and challenge their critical thinking skills.

In the end, that’s what you really want, isn’t it? Not just for your children to learn facts, but to understand concepts and to think critically.

A Brief List of Magazines and Newspapers for Current Events Study

If you are looking for newspapers, newsletters or magazines that can provide a broader perspective on the world and current events, we are happy to suggest the following:

Christian and/or Kingdom Oriented Periodicals

God's World Publications. A series of graded (therefore, easy to read), eight-page publications published weekly during the school year. Reminiscent of "My Weekly Reader." High human interest and U.S.-oriented content. Editorial slant is conservative, anti-socialist, pro-Western. One article each issue uses Scripture to evaluate and comment on some matter of current U.S. or international concern. Adult version of the magazine World, a bi-weekly, is a force to be reckoned with. Their coverage of national and international news is remarkably thorough, thoughtful, and thought-provoking. Includes, besides concise headline news analyzed from a Biblical bent, concise media reviews, and reports from the frontlines of missions, a surprising number of articles that "scoop" the mainstream media on breaking news and analyze Western culture. We have grown very fond of this magazine! Order from God's World Publications, P.O. Box 2330, Asheville, NC 28802, USA;

(800) 951-5437; www.gwnews.com/sonlight. ☒ Discounts available for three or more subscriptions mailed to same address.

Focus on the Family Citizen. Monthly. An activists' advocacy magazine for wholesome, biblical values in American culture. Provides more in-depth coverage on socio-political matters often dealt with on the Focus on the Family radio programs. Good reading. Call 1(800)232-6459 or write to Focus on the Family, Colorado Springs, CO 80995.

Focus on the Family Plugged-In. Monthly. This is another magazine that we have come to appreciate more and more as our kids have grown older and the publication itself has matured. Filled with up-to-the-minute analyses, from a conservative, Christian perspective, of all the latest films, musical recordings (virtually all genres), and videos. See address and phone number above.

Secular Periodicals

The Christian Science Monitor. Daily. If you want a daily overview of what is happening around the world, the Monitor is the place to turn. Though clearly not written from a Christian perspective, the Monitor provides better daily news coverage of world events than almost any other newspaper. Write Christian Science Monitor, P.O. Box 11202, Des Moines, IA 50340; or call (800) 456-2220. Available only in the United States.

Personally, daily newspapers overwhelm me with too much information about too many insignificant matters. Therefore, I prefer weekly and monthly periodicals: journals in which the news has been a bit more fully digested and there can be deeper analysis of what has happened during the previous seven to 31 days. If you are like me in this way, then you will probably prefer the following:

The Week. Weekly. Covers U.S. and world news of all types—political, economic, social, media (film, music, TV), popular (tabloid gossip), business, tech, and more—pulled from a wide range of sources, both domestic and international. One gets the impression that, in general, the editors probably hold a liberal bias, but, more than any other periodical we have found, they view their role as giving a relatively fair editorial voice to all sides on contentious issues. At only 42 pages long, and carrying relatively little advertising, the magazine offers a good, quick take on most current events of any significance in the world at large. Most of the adult members of our family read this magazine faithfully. You can get a six-week, risk-free trial subscription by calling (877) 245-8151. At the moment I write this, there is a special offer code of WKTAJ38, but that may change. If that particular offer is not good, the service person can help you find another trial offer. ■

Why “Kingdom History?”

Obviously the Kingdom History we intend to study is related to “Church History,” “Christian History,” or “the History of Christianity.” It is also related to “the spread of the Gospel of Jesus Christ,” “the History of Christendom,” and several other forms or types of history.

So why did I choose this unfamiliar term “Kingdom History?”

For several reasons. First, because all the other terms we might have chosen have been matters of debate and dissension in the past. For instance, historically, “The Church” has been taken to mean several different things:

—An institution. Depending on your background, the institution you may think of when you think of “church” includes, if you are Roman Catholic: popes, bishops, priests, monks, etc. If you are Eastern Orthodox, this institution includes metropolitans, bishops, priests, etc., and the laity. If you are Protestant, it includes local congregations of believers in Jesus Christ, who together are called the “body of Christ.”

But, then, the church has not always been seen as an institution. Protestants have also viewed the church as:

—A conglomeration of individuals: either all the communicant members of a local congregation of believers in Jesus Christ or all believers in Jesus Christ, whether members of a local congregation or not.

If we are to study “Church” history, which of these definitions should we choose?

I could use other examples.

If we said we wanted to study the history of Christianity, or Christian history, we would have to fight over the meaning of the word “Christian.” Is a Christian a simple believer in Jesus Christ? Or must one be baptized into “the Church” and eligible to receive communion? Or may one simply be a citizen of a country ruled by someone who is under the authority of the Bishop of Rome (the Pope) or one of the other primary bishops of the ancient church (the bishops of Antioch, Alexandria, Jerusalem, and, eventually, Constantinople)?

I wanted to save myself from unnecessary debate, so I chose a different term.

There is another reason for using an unfamiliar term.

While we may be able to agree on the meaning of “Church” or “Christianity,” people who have written histories of these subjects in the past have tended, in my opinion, to narrow their studies unnecessarily. In Protestant circles, for instance, people tend to distinguish “church” from “para-church” (alongside-the-church). In this view, denominations and local congregations are “church”; other organizations (mission agencies) are “para-church.” Catholic church history has no trouble with the missionary orders, but, then (from a Catholic perspective), all Protestants are and have been non-Church since about 1521.

Eastern Orthodox became non-Church in 1054. And when talking about church, per se, Catholic historians usually mean they wish to talk about the development of church hierarchy and doctrine; they tend to ignore personal practice—what it was like to be a common “person in the pew.”

These are broad generalizations, not always true. But still, they are true enough.

Rather than use one of these other terms that carry so much historical baggage, and that would unnecessarily narrow our focus, I have chosen this less familiar term “Kingdom History.”

Where Does the Name “Kingdom History” Come From?

It comes from a word Jesus often used and which is often quoted in Scripture:

- the Kingdom or a Kingdom (for example: Matthew 4:23; 9:35; etc.)
- the Kingdom of Heaven (for example: Matthew 3:2; 4:17; 5:3, 10, etc.)
- the Kingdom of God (also God’s Kingdom and the Father’s Kingdom; Matthew 6:10, 33; 12:28; 13:43; 19:23–24; etc.)
- Jesus’ Kingdom (Matthew 13:41; 16:28; etc.)

You will notice I have merely taken references from the book of Matthew. You will find these and other similar terms throughout the New Testament. (For instance, in Revelation 11:15 we read that “the kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ.”) This Kingdom, God’s Kingdom, is in pitched battle against another kingdom: Satan’s kingdom (Matthew 12:26).

In sum, the kingdom we are studying this year was prepared from the foundations of the earth to be inherited by God’s people. Its general name is the Kingdom of Heaven.¹ It is currently owned and ruled by God the Father. Ownership is being transferred to His Son (Jesus Christ). This kingdom, since the foundation of the earth, has been at war with the Kingdom of Satan.

What is the Kingdom?

Jesus did not define what He meant by “the Kingdom of God” (or “the Kingdom of Heaven”) in precise, legal terms. He used parables to teach His disciples about the Kingdom of Heaven. He said that the Kingdom is “like” . . . a man who planted good seed in a field (Matthew 13:24ff); treasure hidden in a field (Matthew 13:44); a merchant

1. Some people have tried to argue that each of these kingdoms is a separate entity; that we fail to “rightly divide the Word of Truth” if we don’t “remember” that the Kingdom of Heaven, for example, is something different from the Kingdom of God. Matthew 19:23–24 seems to equate the Kingdom of God and the Kingdom of Heaven as one and the same, and so these notes assume they are the same.

who searched for fine pearls (Matthew 13:45ff); a mustard seed (Matthew 13:31–32; Mark 4:30–32; etc.); a man who scatters seed on the ground (Mark 4:3ff, 26ff); yeast that a woman took and mixed in a lump of dough (Matthew 13:33); a net that was let down in a lake and caught all kinds of fish (Matthew 13:47); a king who wanted to settle accounts with his servants (Matthew 18:23ff); ... and on and on the parables go.

Several truths we can gather from these parables:

- The Kingdom of God expands or grows larger; it does not wither, die, or shrivel up (the images of seeds growing and producing fruit; the image of the yeast in the lump of dough).
- The Kingdom of God includes, at least during the course of history, both good and bad, genuine and counterfeit (the images of the farmer who plants good seed but whose enemies plant “tares” or weeds, and the king who wanted to settle accounts with his servants).
- The Kingdom of God is valuable (the images of the treasure hidden in a field, the merchant looking for fine pearls, etc.).

Besides parables, however, Jesus did teach those of us who are His disciples to pray to “our Father in heaven” that His kingdom would come and His will would be done on earth as it is being done in heaven (Matthew 6:9–10). “Seek first [God’s] kingdom and his righteousness,” Jesus told His disciples, and “all these things”—food and clothing, houses, and everything else we may need—“will be given to you as well” (Matthew 6:33).

In Daniel 2 we read that God, through a dream, showed King Nebuchadnezzar “what [would] happen in days to come.”

“As you were lying there, O king,” Daniel tells Nebuchadnezzar,

... your mind turned to things to come, and the revealer of mysteries showed you what is going to happen.

... You looked, O king, and there before you stood a large statue—an enormous, dazzling statue, awesome in appearance. The head of the statue was made of pure gold, its chest and arms of silver, its belly and thighs of bronze, its legs of iron, its feet partly of iron and partly of baked clay. While you were watching, a rock was cut out, but not by human hands. It struck the statue on its feet of iron and clay and smashed them. Then the iron, the clay, the bronze, the silver and the gold were broken to pieces at the same time and became like chaff on a threshing floor in the summer. The wind swept them away without leaving a trace. But the rock that struck the statue became a huge mountain and filled the whole earth.

This was the dream, and now we will interpret it to the king.

... The God of heaven will set-up a kingdom that will never be destroyed, nor will it be left to another people. It will crush all [the earth’s] kingdoms and bring them to an end, but it will itself endure forever. This is the meaning of the vision of the rock cut out of a mountain, but not by human hands—a rock that broke the iron, the bronze, the clay, the silver and the gold to pieces.

The great God has shown the king what will take place in the future. The dream is true and the interpretation is trustworthy. (Daniel 2:29, 31–36, 44–45)

I am convinced that Jesus is that rock that was cut out of a mountain but not by human hands (see Romans 9:33; 1 Corinthians 10:4; 1 Peter 2:8). I believe and expect that His kingdom will destroy every other earthly kingdom (1 Corinthians 15:24–28; Revelation 5:9–10; 11:15) and it, itself, will never be destroyed or left to another people (Luke 1:33; 1 Corinthians 15:24–28; Hebrews 1:8; 12:28; 2 Peter 1:11; Revelation 11:15).

This vision and expectation for the future affects the way in which I view—and, therefore, how I will teach you about—the past. I have few doubts about the future of the Church. Most people I know think we are in the very last moments of the last days of history. Any day now Jesus is coming back to rapture us into heaven. One of the pieces of “evidence” they point to for their interpretation is the growing “persecution” Christians here in the United States are suffering.

I see things in a different light.

I believe Christians in the United States are facing God’s judgment for our failure to serve faithfully as His ambassadors on earth. Instead of the last moments of the last days of history, I think we have some time left; perhaps lots of time, time in which God wants us to be faithful to Him as his representatives. He wants us to exert more and more authority—Godly authority—in every area of life.

While the immediate future may be bleak, my long-term expectations are very bright. I expect God’s Kingdom will come and His Name will be exalted in all the earth.

“All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to Me,” said Jesus (Matthew 28:18). I expect Jesus to exert that authority throughout history “until He has put all His enemies under His feet” (1 Corinthians 15:25); “then the end will come, when he hands over the kingdom to God the Father” (1 Corinthians 15:24).

Four Views of Church History (see illustration on next page)

There are two traditional approaches to church history, two traditional ways to view what has happened down through the centuries.

Hilaire Belloc presents a traditional Roman Catholic and Orthodox view. To him, the Church (i.e., the Roman Catholic Church; to Orthodox historians, the Eastern Orthodox Church) is a monolithic testament to the faithfulness of God down through the centuries. Though it has been attacked from all sides, though its future has sometimes looked dim and grim, it has survived the assaults and remains a great institutional witness to the glory of God.

I summarize Belloc’s perspective in the words, “How the Church has survived amid continual assault.” I have drawn my view of Belloc’s version of Church history in Diagram A, below: “The Great Monolith.”

Most Protestant historians, and some Catholic and Orthodox historians, have viewed church history in a different light. They see it not so much as a great monolith that has survived innumerable attacks; rather, it is a tree that has been pruned and trimmed down through the centuries. First there were the Nestorians in AD 325: Snip! They’re cut off! Then (from a Roman and Protestant perspective) the Orthodox in AD 1054: Snip! They’re gone! (From the Orthodox perspective, of course, it is the other way around: Snip! The Roman Catholics and, through them, the Protestants are cut off...) Then, about AD 1521, the Roman Catholics and Protestants cut each other off: Snip! They’re gone!

In this second view, people still speak of the grace and glory of God, but the focus is on “how our group got to be where it is today.” I envision this version of church history as in Diagram B.

Dr. Ralph Winter of the U.S. Center for World Mission suggests many Protestants hold a third picture of church history. He calls it the “BOBO” theory. “BOBO” stands for “Blink Off/Blink On.” In this view, the true church “blinked off” soon after the apostles died, certainly within a few years after Constantine legalized Christianity in the Roman Empire in AD 313. It didn’t blink back on again until the Protestant Reformation. I have diagrammed the BOBO view in Diagram C.

My own personal view of Kingdom history fits Diagram D. I view the church, God’s Kingdom, somewhat as a tree with many branches. Rather than all the branches but “ours” being cut off, I believe that God has maintained His faithful people in the various branches. He trims and prunes the branches, but the tree is actually far healthier than most church historians realize. Rather than a bean-pole skeleton of a tree, therefore, I believe we should look for a wide, flowering, bushy tree (see Matthew 13:31–32; Mark 4:30–32; etc.).

Some Specifics About This Study

The Story of Christianity

by Michael Collins and Matthew Price

This book will serve as the foundation of our study this year. The authors—one a Catholic professor (Collins), the other a Protestant publisher (Price)—give a concise and relatively balanced view of Kingdom history from the beginnings of the church in the 1st century to our modern time. In general, I think, the authors have balanced each other and kept each other from advancing particularly strong Catholic or Protestant agendas. They give “the good, bad, and the ugly” of Christian history without trying too hard to prove this or that particular view. Their insight is not perfect (nor is anyone else’s) but they do a good job of keeping a balanced approach.

The 100 Most Important Events in Christian History

by A. Kenneth Curtis, J. Stephen Lang, and Randy Peterson

Besides understanding the general flow of Kingdom history, we want to focus on the major events that shaped and influenced the theology, decisions, and actions of the men and women who made that history. The authors of this book have chosen what they consider to be the 100 most important of those events. Your studies in this text will add detail to the information you read in The Story of Christianity.

From Jerusalem to Irian Jaya

by Ruth Tucker

Ruth Tucker focuses her attention on some of the key people who have been involved in what we might call the Kingdom's "diplomatic corps" and, perhaps, its army.

The Church of the East

by John Holzmann

Unfortunately, most Western Kingdom history books tell little about the expansion of God's Kingdom to the East—to India, China, Russia, and even Japan and Indonesia. In this book, John Holzmann (co-owner of Sonlight Curriculum, Ltd.) has edited the work of Rev. John Stewart in Nestorian Missionary Enterprise to demonstrate that the "difficulty is to find a place in all Asia where Eastern Christians or missionaries did not go!" The Church of the East was a powerful and greatly persecuted missionary force long before the time of Muhammad. This text will give you insight into a part of the story of the Kingdom you might not read elsewhere.

How to Read Church History, Vols. 1 and 2

by Jean Comby

Comby sets Kingdom history in the broader context of the political, social, and economic developments in the wider world. Direct quotations from primary sources accompany the narrative. Drawings, photos, charts, and maps help bring the period to life. These books are reserved for advanced students and are, therefore, optional resources to this course. ■
