I was feeling overwhelmed and afraid that I lacked what it takes to successfully homeschool my kids,” writes Jennifer A of Battle Creek, MI. “I contacted an Advisor on Sonlight’s online chat tool and got the help I needed. The next day I was able to put her counsel into practice!”

Teach writing naturally and with confidence using Sonlight's unique Language Arts Instructor’s Guides. LA Guides also include:

1. Teaching Scripts (in the early grades)
   Read the teaching scripts in the IG when you introduce new ideas, concepts, and assignments. Great for parents just starting to homeschool or to provide extra confidence when teaching!

2. Overview Summaries
   Weekly overviews summarize the concepts, skills, and assignments for each week.

3. Copywork/Dictation Assignments
   With weekly copywork or dictation assignments, children model master communicators to learn the basics of writing. Assignments are based on your children's ages and ability levels, and most passages come from their Readers.

4. Spelling
   Sonlight Language Arts Instructor’s Guides include spelling lists in levels 1-4. Beginning with Level 1, each week’s spelling list corresponds with the reading. For Language Arts D-F, choose one of the stand-alone programs (p. 65). The IG has a space to record your progress.

5. Grammar and Writing Mechanics
   Receive clear grammar instruction about specific concepts from the week’s copywork or dictation passage, then complete a few exercises to practice and reinforce the concepts. Answers included. Your children will learn to communicate effectively.

6. Evaluative Rubrics
   Easily determine how to evaluate your children’s work. Are they on track? What areas could use additional practice? What are the expectations in this assignment?

Effective Creative Writing Instruction
Step-by-step creative writing instruction encourages exploration and sets your children free to develop their creative side. They become superb written communicators, too.
Your IG includes assignments in a wide variety of styles and genres, including imaginative, persuasive, expository, narrative, journaling, etc. Each assignment includes instruction and a sample of what your student might produce.
The writing assignments follow a consistent pattern each week: copywork or dictation on Days 1 and 5; mechanics instruction and practice on Day 2; pre-planning for writing on Day 3; writing assignment on Day 4.

Activity Sheets and Answers
Activity sheets reinforce your teaching and provide assignments that make your children eager to learn how to write well. A variety of activity options coordinate with your students’ language arts studies and draw on a range of skills and interests. Weekly notes provide answers to grammar questions and suggested responses for creative writing assignments.

Schedules for Optional Workbooks
All levels include schedules for optional workbooks. These workbooks offer your children additional practice in areas where they may struggle, such as phonics, grammar, and vocabulary. See pp. 64-67 for these supplemental materials.

Before You Begin ...

You are about to embark on an exciting journey! With Sonlight’s Language Arts program as both your passport and map, you and your children will travel to exotic, wonderful places. Be aware, though, that you may at times face some rough seas. And that’s OK.

In fact, it’s more than OK. Confusion and frustration are perfectly common, natural reactions in any educational setting. Sonlight’s goal is to minimize such distractions on your Language Arts voyage. We thought it would be a good idea to explain a couple of things up front that we hope will calm the seas, fill your sails, and lead to safe harbor.

Leaving Your Comfort Zone

As you launch Sonlight’s Language Arts program, it will not take you long to notice that something different is going on here. Are you missing something? Probably not! The mental map of your experience probably does not match what you are seeing.

You were probably taught Language Arts in a traditional way using workbooks and repetition. Sonlight does not teach Language Arts this way. Our research revealed that traditional methods, while comfortable, produced inferior results and were boring!

Traditional methods focus on repetition and drive students to memorize chunks of unrelated material in order to pass a test. What happens after the test? Unfortunately, students usually soon forget what they learned. Has learning really occurred then? Maybe. But, many students only learn how to beat the system!

“Memorize, pass test, forget” is not the pattern Sonlight promotes.

The Sonlight Way

Instead, Sonlight’s Language Arts program is based on the “natural learning” approach. “Natural” or “integrated” learning means students learn by discovery. They observe, analyze, and then seek to imitate what they have seen a master wordsmith do before them.

The “natural learning” approach is not as intuitively obvious as the instruction found in most standard workbooks. Students will make a discovery, and we will reinforce it for them. However, they won’t find 50 similar “problems” neatly laid out for them to “solve.”

In “natural learning,” students see each principle at work in the natural context of a sentence or paragraph that they have read in one of their assignments. They have to really puzzle things through, and you will occasionally have to help them figure things out.

The “natural learning” approach is, in some ways, slower than traditional workbook methods. But here’s the key: when students “get” a principle that they’ve been striving to master via this method, they will never forget it! They will understand it thoroughly and be able to apply it in almost any context. That is true learning. That is our goal.

For more in-depth information regarding Sonlight’s Language Arts philosophy, go to: www.sonlight.com/educational-philosophy.html.

Additional Resources

As you adjust to teaching with the “natural learning” approach, you may want some additional assistance at times. For example, you may want to familiarize yourself with quality resources such as Dr. Ruth Beechick’s books. For further study, we recommend Dr. Ruth Beechick’s books The Three-R’s Series and You CAN Teach Your Child Successfully.

If you feel like your children just seem to be struggling or overwhelmed with their work, don’t hesitate to put some books away and simply wait awhile. Instead, spend more time on your Read-Alouds and simply continue to encourage a love for reading. In a few months, try again, and you will probably find that allowing a little extra time for your children to grow made success easier for them to attain.

Join the Family

Besides referring to your Instructor’s Guide and books, please visit our Sonlight Connections Community (sonlight.com/connections). If you have any questions about how to teach, or why you might (or might not) want to do something; if you wonder if someone has an idea about how to do something better, or whether you or your children are on track or need special help or attention; or for whatever reason, you will find a large community of friendly, helpful people available.

About this Instructor’s Guide

Sonlight’s Language Arts program seeks to develop your children’s writing abilities via dictation, application, and creative expression. It emphasizes spelling, phonics, vocabulary development, and handwriting. Your children will write daily in a variety of ways.

We provide a 36-week, normal school length schedule. Please take some time now to plan your school year so that you can meet your educational objectives as well as your family’s needs. It is okay to use more time to finish this program.

This guide consists of several parts. Section One provides a brief overview of your Language Arts studies for the year. We want you to not only know what to do, but also why you do it.

Section Two includes the heart of the program: record-keeping/schedule sheets and notes. Use the schedule sheets to find each week’s assignments and to record what you’ve done each day. Simply place a check mark by each assignment as it’s completed. You can also use these sheets to record problem areas or subjects and topics needing special review. Please feel free to modify our suggested schedule to match your own—and your children’s—specific needs.

Keep these records to demonstrate to others (government authorities, in particular) what you have taught your children.

Immediately following the schedule, you’ll find Notes with instructions for assignments and Answer Keys. These notes contain Weekly Overviews that outline the skills and assignments covered that week, as well as rubrics that will help you evaluate the week’s writing assignment. See the “Recommendations for Teaching Writing” article in Section Four for more information about rubrics. Directly after the Notes are the Weekly Activity Sheets with your children’s dictation passages as well as their other assignments.

Section Three includes Reader Study Guides that contain discussion questions and other teaching notes that will help you guide your students through the Readers scheduled in this guide.

Section Four contains several helpful resources for all users. This section contains an overview of topics scheduled in this guide, teaching tips for how to use the tools included in this program, as well as suggestions that will help you modify this program to best fit your family’s needs.

We also recommend you visit the My Downloads section of your Sonlight Account for several other helpful teaching tools, including:

• Getting Organized—includes great tips about scheduling your school year, modifying our program and keeping records
• Tips When Using the Internet

Optional Dictation Passages

While our goal is for your children to write every day, we realize that there are some days when your children will just not feel like writing. All children will have “dry” days when it seems like getting blood from a stone would be easier than getting one paragraph from them.

So what should you do on those “dry” days? Mercilessly browbeat them into submission? Not if you value your own sanity! Just skip writing that day? Not if you want your children to learn to love and excel at writing … Instead, we recommend another solution: dictation.

For your convenience, we provide an optional dictation passage each week. The next time you find yourself with a reluctant writer, just use it as your writing assignment for the day. And encourage your children to get some extra rest so that they’re ready to tackle their regular writing assignment the next day.
Mechanics Practice

In order to become more proficient writers, we believe students need to not only practice writing but also understand “what’s going on under the hood” in what they’re reading and writing. Therefore, each week we offer an introduction to a grammatical or writing mechanics topic (grammatical rule, literary term, punctuation, capitalization, etc.). Look for the skills covered each week in the “Weekly Overview” table, located just before the Creative Expression notes for each week. For a 36-week progression of topics and skills studied this year in Language Arts, see our Schedule of Topics and Skills, located in Section Four.

Creative Expression (Writing)

Sonlight’s Creative Expression assignments encompass a wide variety of writing tasks, styles, and skills. For example, your children will encounter traditional composition practice (ranging from formal essays to informal thank-you notes), research, poetry, book reports, analysis, and fun, inspired creative assignments. We believe that the breadth and variety of writing assignments will launch your children to new heights in their writing—and that they’ll have a lot of fun in the process!

We designed our writing assignments to help your children develop fundamental skills that they will build upon in the future. We hope you are looking forward to the new challenges we present this year. If you’ve had a chance to preview this guide and some of the work seems daunting, don’t worry: Just because we use new or advanced concepts (similes, metaphors, etc.) doesn’t mean the assignments themselves are hard. Give your children the benefit of the doubt! Let them try the assignments as they are, but feel free to modify if necessary.

Our desire at this point is not mastery (either of vocabulary or concepts), but acquaintance and familiarity. We believe mastery can come over years of repeated brief encounters with the same material.

For more information about how to use this program to help you confidently teach writing this year, please see the “Recommendations for Teaching Writing” article in Section Four.

Spelling

In our early elementary products, spelling has been incorporated into the Language Arts programs. From this point forward, however, you will need to decide how much more spelling practice your student needs. Generally, we recommend choosing a spelling program for at least Levels D-F and then continue with the spelling program if your student struggles. Spelling You See is a great option to help your students as spelling challenges advance.

Use the blank rows on the Schedule pages to record your spelling work.

As students get older, correcting their writing assignments will eventually become the natural spelling work for most students. You can also use the weekly dictation exercises to help you monitor your students’ spelling progress. Consider keeping records on the weekly schedule pages of errors you see consistently. Use the list of spelling rules included in the My Downloads section of your Sonlight account to help you review those issues with your student.

Grammar Ace

We recommend Grammar Ace for one year between 4th–7th grade. This self-paced grammar supplement contains a progressive journey through only the most practical grammar your children need and makes a great addition to Sonlight’s Language Arts. Once you have finished Grammar Ace, we recommend you choose either Grammar 5 & 6 with Winston Grammar or Keys to Good Language, but not both as the programs teach using a different format and lesson progression. Use the space on the Schedule page to record what you have done.

Vocabulary

While the bulk of our Vocabulary study is contained in the Read-Aloud study guide and part of the History/Bible/Literature Instructor’s Guide, you will see some terms defined in the Reader Study Guides in Section Three as well. The books we choose for you to read aloud often tie to the same historical time period as the rest of the texts we select, but are usually written at a higher reading level than the books we schedule as Readers. Therefore, Read-Alouds provide rich, content-relevant language presented during a time in which you can easily pause and discuss unfamiliar words with your students.

In all of our study guides, we categorize the words we highlight in two ways. Vocabulary words are words your students will probably encounter in other texts—not just those included in this curriculum. We list these words within an excerpt of the text from the book in which they are found so that you may challenge your students to define the terms using the clues found in the context of the rest of the story. Simply read these short quotes aloud and see if your students can tell you the meaning of the bold italicized terms. For example:

Read: “Unobtrusively, Johnny got his notebook and pencil.”

Ask your child: “What do you think ‘Unobtrusively’ means?”
After your student answers, compare their response to the answer in parentheses: (in a manner to avoid notice)

Cultural Literacy terms are words that, if defined while your students are reading, will broaden and deepen their understanding of the text. However, these words are generally specific to course content, and we wouldn’t expect your students to read or hear them on a regular basis. You may use these words, formatted in bold followed by a colon and their definitions, more like a convenient glossary. For example:

Define the word when it comes up in the text—amplitude: the arc of the horizon between east and west.

If you’d like more vocabulary practice, we recommend the Wordly Wise program. We schedule this optional work-book for you.

Student Activity Sheets

We have included Activity Sheets to help you help your children. For levels D-W, to enable your children to study independently, you will find the bulk of the Language Arts instruction on the Weekly Activity Sheets, with a small summary of what we teach each day included in your notes. Feel free to read and work with them through the lessons on the Activity Sheets, or give them the reins to work solo, once you feel they are able to do so.

Supplementary Websites

For your convenience, we have created a website that is dedicated to providing you with links that we thought may be helpful for supplementing the material your children will be learning. That website is www.sonlight.com/iglinks.html. Every time we have provided a corresponding link on this webpage, you will see this symbol ![link]. We hope you find this helpful!

Corrections and Suggestions

Since we at Sonlight constantly work to improve our product, we would love it if we could get you to help us with this process.

Whenever you find an error anywhere in one of our Instructor’s Guides, please send a short e-mail to: IGcorrections@sonlight.com. It would be helpful if the subject line of your e-mail indicated where the problem is. For instance, “Language Arts D/Section Two/Week 1/Day 3.” Then, in the message portion of the e-mail, tell us what the error is.

If, while going through our curriculum, you think of any way we could improve our product, please e-mail your suggestions to: IGsuggestions@sonlight.com. If you know of a different book we should use, if you think we should read a book we assign at a different point in the year, or if you have any other ideas, please let us know. Your efforts will greatly help us improve the quality of our products, and we very much appreciate you taking the time to let us know what you find. Thanks for your help!
Spelling

Spelling You See

To improve your students’ spelling, complete daily spelling exercises. We recommend the Spelling You See program. Use the “Spelling” line on your weekly schedule to record what you have done each week.

Mechanics Practice

- Sentence Basics
- Nouns: common/proper; gender; concrete/abstract; compound; collective
- Similes & Metaphors

Creative Expression

- Skill: Describe the colors of a place
- Assignment: Write a descriptive paragraph Handwriting

Consider handwriting instruction at this level as completely optional—use a formal handwriting program only if your children need practice. Otherwise, use your children’s dictation work to check their handwriting.

If you choose a handwriting program, then use the line in your weekly sheet to record what your children do.

If you would like help scheduling any of the programs we offer, please go online to www.sonlight.com/handwritingschedules.html and download and print the appropriate file.

Readers

We include the Readers schedule and corresponding Study Guides in both the History and Language Arts Guides. However, we do not include the map points in the Language Arts guides because we consider geography part of our History program. Please refer to your History/Bible/Literature W Guide for more information about maps. Find the Study Guide notes for the weekly Readers in Section Three. We have them organized in the order your students read them.

Grammar/Mechanics

Do Grammar Ace for one year between 4th–7th grade. Choose the grade that works best for your students. Visit our website for product offerings that will help you continue your grammar study beyond Grammar Ace. We recommend you choose either Grammar 5 & 6 with Winston Grammar or Keys to Good Language, but not do both as the programs teach using a different format and lesson progression. Use the space on the Schedule page to record what you have done.

Mechanics Instruction Included in this Guide

In order to hone the technical side of your students’ writing efforts, this program also includes one brief lesson each week that introduces them to a grammatical or mechanical topic. We include these lessons as a part of your Day 1 Creative Expression assignment, under the “Mechanics Practice” header.

Vocabulary Development

Vocabulary

While the bulk of our Vocabulary study is contained in the Read-Aloud study guide and part of the HBL Instructor’s Guide, you will see some terms defined in the Reader Study Guides too.

In all of our study guides, we categorize the words we highlight in two ways. Vocabulary words are words your students will probably encounter in other texts—not just those included in this curriculum. We list these words within an excerpt of the text from the book in which they are found so that you may challenge your students to define the terms using the clues found in the context of the rest of the story. Cultural Literacy terms are words that, if defined while your students are reading, will broaden and deepen their understanding of the text. However, these words are generally specific to course content, and we wouldn’t expect your students read or hear them on a regular basis. You may use these words, formatted in bold followed by a colon and their definitions, more like a convenient glossary.

Wordly Wise

If you’d like more vocabulary practice, we recommend the Wordly Wise program. We schedule this optional workbook for you.

Creative Expression

Our goal is to have your students writing all week long. To keep things interesting and to offer a broad range of skill practice, this writing practice varies throughout the week. On Day 1 your students will study a Dictation passage that they will write down as you read it on Day 5. After they review the passage on Day 1, they will learn about a concept for Mechanics Practice. On Days 2–4, they will work on more formalized Creative Expression assignments. These assignments vary widely each week in order to give your students experience in all types of writing—and oral presentation, too.

Preferred Dictation Method

This dictation method involves two steps. First, on Day 1 ask your students to read through the dictation passage to familiarize themselves with it. They should note any words, capitalizations, or matters of punctuation that require special attention. This is also their opportunity to ask you to clarify anything they’re unsure about. Once your students understand the passage, have them complete the “Mechanics Practice” activity on the Activity Sheet.

On Day 5, your students should take no more than five to ten minutes to prepare independently for the final dictation. Preparation may involve writing out unfamiliar words, practicing spelling them out loud or on paper, trying to remember how a word looks by “seeing” it in their minds, drawing a word in large letters written in mid-air with an imaginary pen, etc. When their time is up, give the dictation, clause by clause, reading each clause only twice (repeating it only once). As you read the passage to them, avoid the temptation to emphasize the different sounds in each word. Your students should write in the cursive style.

Before handing their papers to you, your students should check their work for errors. They should mark and correct any errors they find. Discuss with your students what you think they have done particularly well, as well as what they could do better.
If you see consistent spelling, punctuation, or handwriting problems, keep a record on the weekly schedule and review those areas using the list of spelling rules included in the My Downloads section of your Sonlight account.

About Mechanics Practice

On Day 1 of each week, we offer a brief introduction to one grammatical or mechanical topic. This year your students will work through three basic groups of skills. We will study basic grammar skills in two main sections: Sentence Basics (nouns, verbs, adjectives, etc.), and The Building Blocks of Sentences (phrases, clauses, active and passive voice, etc.). We’ll then intersperse the grammatical lessons with common Mechanics topics that we’ll schedule throughout the year.

Look for the skills covered each week in the “Weekly Overview” table, located after the weekly schedule. For a 36-week progression of topics and skills studied this year in Language Arts, see our Schedule of Topics and Skills, located in Section Four.

Creative Expression

In order to broaden your students’ experience and to encourage them to think more deeply about the wide range of topics studied throughout the year in the Sonlight W History/Bible/Literature program, you will notice that some of this year’s Creative Expression assignments reference not only this year’s Readers but sometimes titles used in our History or Read-Aloud programs as well. For an overview of what is covered and when, please see the Topics and Skills list located in Section Four of this guide. You may find it helpful to know when we pull ideas from other subjects so that you can plan your day and the timing of your students’ Creative Expression activities accordingly.

Don’t worry: if you did not purchase the corresponding HBL program, your students will still be able to complete each assignment with the information provided in this guide. We will make recommendations in your notes and on your students’ Activity Sheets of how to break down this three-day assignment, but feel free to make adjustments as needed to accommodate your schedule and individual pacing.

As many writing assignments require your student to write on a separate sheet of paper, we recommend purchasing a notebook especially for these assignments.

Feeling Overwhelmed?

Due to the myriad of concepts to cover—many of which may seem abstract—and the subjectivity that evaluating writing assignments often requires, the idea of teaching Language Arts may seem daunting. Understandably! For this reason we have included an article called “Recommendations for Teaching Language Arts” in Section Four of this guide to help you navigate your Language Arts journey this year. We hope the suggestions found here will help you determine how to use this program so that it works best for your family, and will provide answers to further teaching questions you may have.

Day 1

Dictation—Read

Read through the dictation passage with your students. Have them note any words, capitalizations, or matters of punctuation that require special attention. On the fifth day, you will read it aloud as your students write it down.

An hour later he was crossing the worn stone wharfs to the Beetle’s anchorage. Nekonkh hung over the gunwale, his arms propped wide, his shoulders burnished copper in the brilliant sunlight. Every line of him spelled anxiety. Sheftu stepped into the cool shadow of the hull, swung onto the rope ladder and climbed up through the blue-green dancing reflections into the glare of sun on deck.1

Mechanics Practice

This year, your students will delve more deeply into the mechanics of the English language, and we’ll begin to serve up some rather meaty grammatical topics. To help both of you in your study this year, we include a Grammar Guide in Section Four this guide that succinctly explains topics we discuss in Mechanics Practice. Please keep this appendix handy for reference as you work this year. Use it whenever you need a refresher on a topic.

Today your students will learn about several types of nouns. For more information, see the Week 1 Activity Sheet.

Answers:

1. Underline all of the nouns in the passage on the Activity Sheet. Double underline proper nouns. (See answers in the passage that follows.)

2. Label the gender of each noun. Use F for feminine, M for masculine, N for neuter and I for indefinite.

   Last year my family went to Egypt to see the pyramids of Giza. Most pyramids in Egypt were built as tombs for Pharaohs and other dignitaries—some were even built for queens. Our entire trip was fascinating, but I think I learned the most interesting facts about the Great Pyramid, or the Pyramid of Khufu. Our tour guide said that, surprisingly, no hieroglyphics or writing exists on the inside of it. It is also the most accurately aligned structure in existence, and faces true north with only 3/60th of a degree of error. (We also learned that since the North Pole moves slightly over time, the pyramid must have once been perfectly aligned to true north.) The pyramids of Giza are impressive structures and that everyone who studies World History should visit.2

   Note: “on the inside of it”—It is a pronoun. It does act as the object of the preposition, in the prepositional phrase of it, and as the subject of the sentence that follows, but as it is not a true noun, we have not underlined it for this exercise. We will discuss pronouns, prepositional phrases, and subjects and predicates later on this year.

4. Bonus: Similes: The dark blue sky, cloudless, like an inverted blue bowl. Herds of grazing sheep, like patches of snow.

   For your convenience, we provide an additional dictation passage each week. If your students are having an “off” day, just use one of these alternative dictation passages instead of your writing assignment for the day. Feel free to take a break instead of trying to grind your way through the regular assignment.

   “My death will be as nothing to them. It will be as a stone thrown into the Nile in the time of inundation! Do the waters stop for a stone? The plans are made, Hatshepsut, and the hour is near. You will know your enemies when they strike.”3

   Optional Dictation

   Today and tomorrow your students will write a colorful descriptive paragraph. Today they will use a table to help plan out the details of their paragraph. See “Write Your Descriptive Paragraph—Plan” on the Week 1 Activity Sheet for more information.

   Write Your Descriptive Paragraph—Plan

   Today your students will use the ideas they brainstormed yesterday to write a descriptive paragraph. Follow the directions under “Write Your Descriptive Paragraph” on the Week 1 Activity Sheet.

   Write Your Descriptive Paragraph

   Have your students review and edit their paragraphs. Follow the directions under “Descriptive Paragraph—Polish” on the Week 1 Activity Sheet.

   Descriptive Paragraph—Polish

   How to Evaluate This Week’s Assignment

   For this first assignment of the school year, focus on getting back into the process of planning, drafting, revising, and editing. Did your students take time to write thoughtful and thorough notes about the topic? Did they rely on the notes when drafting their paragraph the first time? Were there notable improvements made from the first draft to the final? Also, consider your students’ ability to work more independently this year. Did they follow directions correctly? Work diligently without prompting? These are habits you will want to help them build early in the year.

Rubrics

Have you ever wondered how you should evaluate your students' writing? Much of literary critique is subjective, but we understand that sometimes it's helpful to have a concrete way to help you focus your critique. A rubric is a simple form that will help you give point values to certain characteristics of an assignment.

Each week, review the rubrics we offer and keep the listed items in mind as you work on the assignments with your students. When they turn in their work, use the topics in the rubric to help you determine how your students performed each skill. Use the rubrics to help you more clearly gauge the areas your students could use more work and make note to revise your instruction accordingly.

At this age, we want to emphasize the writing process more than the final result. Think back to when your students learned to talk. They could probably understand your instructions and respond to you long before they formed a complete sentence. Now that they can read independently, expressing their own thoughts on paper is the next step. Learning to write is like "learning to speak on paper." Plan to teach your students to write with the same small steps and gentle instruction you used when they learned to talk. Rubrics will help you focus on a few steps at a time, slowly each week.

For more information about rubrics, how to create your own and how to help your students use them independently as they grow, see the "Recommendations for Teaching Writing" article in Section Four.

The following sample rubric will help you determine how well your students wrote their paragraph. Feel free to adjust the rubric to meet the individual needs of your students.

5. Dictation—Write

Read the dictation passage aloud, and have your students write the passage on a separate piece of paper. When they're finished, discuss any problem areas with them.

An hour later he was crossing the worn stone wharfs to the Beetle's anchorage. Nekonkh hung over the gunwale, his arms propped wide, his shoulders burnished copper in the brilliant sunlight. Every line of him spelled anxiety. Sheftu stepped into the cool shadow of the hull, swung onto the rope ladder and climbed up through the blue-green dancing reflections into the glare of sun on deck.\(^4\)

Mechanics Practice

A noun is a word that names a person, place, thing or idea. Dog, tractor, mailman, bookcase and jealousy are all examples of nouns. A proper noun names a specific person, place, thing or idea, such as Pittsburgh, Mary, or Sonlight, and common nouns do not name something specific: tomato, pencil, park. Proper nouns are always capitalized, whereas common nouns are not.

Did you know that nouns can also denote gender? Nouns can be feminine, masculine, neuter or indefinite? For example:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Gender</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Feminine: (female)</td>
<td>mother, aunt, hen, waitress</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Masculine: (male)</td>
<td>father, uncle, rooster, waiter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Neuter: (neither male nor female)</td>
<td>table, lamp, car</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Indefinite: (either male or female)</td>
<td>teacher, children, horse</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Nouns may either be concrete objects (like a pool or a trampoline) or an abstract idea (like love, sadness, or justice). Compound nouns are made up of two or more words (like football, step-sister or middle school), and a collective noun names a specific kind of group (like a gaggle, herd, or team).

Read the passage below and then answer the questions that follow.

Last year my family went to Egypt to see the pyramids of Giza. Most pyramids in Egypt were built as tombs for Pharaohs and other dignitaries—some were even built for queens. Our entire trip was fascinating, but I think I learned the most interesting facts about the Great Pyramid, or the Pyramid of Khufu. Our tour guide said that, surprisingly, no hieroglyphics or writing exists on the inside of it. It is also the most accurately aligned structure in existence, and faces true north with only 3/60th of a degree of error. (We also learned that since the North Pole moves slightly over time, the pyramid must have once been perfectly aligned to true north.) The pyramids of Giza are impressive structures that everyone who studies World History should visit.²

1. Take a moment to underline all of the nouns in the passage above. When you find a proper noun, underline it twice.

2. Once the nouns are underlined, label the gender of each one. Use F for feminine, M for masculine, N for neuter and I for indefinite.

Language Arts W | Week 1 Activity Sheet
3. If they exist, list one of each of the following types of nouns found in the passage:

- concrete: __________________________________________
- abstract: __________________________________________
- compound: _________________________________________
- collective: ________________________________________

Bonus: A simile is an analogy that compares two things that are not obviously similar and suggests there are similarities. Similes use the word like or as. For example:

- She's as cold as ice.
- The bridesmaids marched down the aisle like a parade of fancy cupcakes.

A metaphor is an analogy that compares two different things using imaginative phrases to make them seem the same when they are really different. Instead of being directly compared, though, one thing is actually said to be another. Metaphors compare two things without using the words like or as. For example:

- Her hand was as ice on my arm.
- The lump of cheese and dry bread was a feast after days without food.

A metaphor compares two things, but doesn’t tell us it is making a comparison. We have to figure that out. Here is an example of a metaphor from the Bible:

- Jesus said, “I am the vine; you are the branches; if a man remains in me and I in him, he will bear much fruit” (John 15:5)

Clearly, Jesus was not (and is not) a fruit vine. And neither you nor I nor anyone else Jesus was talking to were or are branches on a vine. None of us produces grapes. But there is a sense in which what Jesus said is true. Isn’t it true that in the same way a branch must remain connected to the grape vine if it is to bear fruit, so, too, we must remain connected to Jesus if our lives are to be fruitful?

4. Read the following passage and look for similes and metaphors. When you find one, copy it in the space that follows. Then identify the type of comparison the author has made. Can you find more than one?

The long trip in the train and all the excitement were beginning to wear Kate out. She looked around. She saw the great Hungarian plain unfold before her eyes. Something in her was touched by the solemn beauty of it. Its immense grassy expanses unbroken by mountains or trees, shimmering under the spring sun. The dark blue sky, cloudless, like an inverted blue bowl. Herds of grazing sheep, like patches of snow. No sound, save the soft thud of the horses’ hoofs on the white dusty road, and now and then the distant tinkle of sheep’s bells, or the eerie sound of a shepherd’s flute, the tilinkó.³

Today and tomorrow you will write a colorful descriptive paragraph about your home town or a place you love. For inspiration, read the paragraph from Mara, Daughter of the Nile below.

The city that rose beyond them shimmered, almost drained of color, in the glare of Egyptian noon. Doorways were blue-black in white buildings, alleys were plunged in shadow; the gay colors of the sails and hulls that crowded the harbor seemed faded and indistinct, and even the green of the Nile was overlaid by a blinding surface glitter. Only the sky was vivid, curving in a high blue arch over ancient Menfe.⁴

How many references to color did the author make? Your job specifically for this week’s writing assignment is to describe the colors of a place you love.

A good description develops a main idea for the reader. What is the color palette of your favorite place? Is it bright and cheery? Cool and misty? Are there shades of blue or glittering white? Use specific examples to support the main idea of this color palette.

Close your eyes and pretend you are standing in your favorite place. What time of day is it? How does the light from the sun (if you can see it) impact what you see? Choose four or five objects in the scene to describe the colors of in your paragraph.

Today, summarize your thoughts in the table below before you write the paragraph tomorrow. Focus on the message that you want to give your readers. What is the overall feel of the entire color palette you’d like to describe? Write the topic sentence of your paragraph before you finish today.

Write Your Descriptive Paragraph

Today you will use the ideas you brainstormed yesterday to write a descriptive paragraph. Review the four or five objects you plan to describe listed in the table you completed yesterday under “Objects to Describe”. What color names best suit each object? Review those you listed in the section called “Color of these objects”, and try to improve the color names you listed. If you need help thinking of colors, you might look through a box of crayons, or think of other objects that are a similar color—like oily black or murky-water green. List the final color names next to the object it describes in the column to the right.

When you’re ready, write the first draft of your paragraph. Try to describe not only the color of each object, but also how the color and the object appear—whether it’s muted, bold, faded, translucent, shimmering, etc. Can you communicate the time of day in your scene simply in your description of the color?

When you're finished, review your paragraph one more time to make sure you haven't accidentally misspelled a word or left out something important. You will spend some time polishing the paragraph tomorrow.

Descriptive Paragraph—Polish

All writers need to be able to step back from their work and review it with a critical eye. Read through your paragraph today as though it were any other reading assignment. How does it flow? Does anything jump out at you that you don’t like? Did you find a mistake that you missed yesterday?

When you’ve read through the paragraph, step back and think about it as a whole. Would the paragraph flow better if a few of the sentences were in a different order? Is there a sentence that doesn’t seem to fit like the others do? If so, check to see if the sentence provides a detail that doesn’t support the topic sentence. Could you rewrite this sentence so that it would support the topic better?

Finally, look for one object you described yesterday to improve its description. Add adjectives (describing words) or a simile or metaphor (words or phrases that make a comparison to describe something), or grab a thesaurus to find a new word that will really make the sentence shine.

When you’ve completed all of your edits, rewrite a clean and final version of your paragraph.

Dictation—Read

Read through the dictation passage with your students. Have them note any words, capitalizations, or matters of punctuation that require special attention. On the fifth day, you will read it aloud as your students write it down.

Soft murmurs and even sobs rose among the people while the song was sung. Barak stood like a god himself, and it did not matter any more.
that he was not tall. And suddenly I knew what their secret must be. For this, I was sure, was a battle song, to be sung only in time of war. Jo-tham had said they had no leader. It seemed that they had found one.1

Mechanics Practice

Today your students will learn about verbs: action verbs, helping verbs, and singular and plural verbs. See the Week 2 Activity Sheet for more information.

Answers:

1. sung; hung; thought; called; forgot; waiting; resume
2. had sung; did [not] matter; were waiting; must resume
3. s—was; p—were; s—writes; p—write; p—gulp; s—gulps

And for the first time I saw my chariot. It was not mine alone, for it was a heavy Hittite car for two riders and a driver. This was the great weapon of the Hittites, perfected by them and once used in the conquest of half the world, even to the borders of Egypt. It was sheathed and shafted with bronze and had swift round wheels, made more deadly by the sharp, costly iron scythes that stood out from them.2

Spatial Organization

Architects, engineers, aviators, and designers use spatial organization on a regular basis. In their careers they utilize spatial organization to create three-dimensional projects or to navigate within three-dimensional space. Spatial skills are easier for some students, especially those who excel in math and logical reasoning. This assignment challenges all learners to become spatial thinkers and to communicate their ideas on paper. See “Spatial Organization” on the Week 2 Activity Sheet for directions.

Research for Travel Journal

Your students will need to research information about Ancient Egypt for this assignment. Also, keep a map of the Nile River available for your students. See “Research for Travel Journal” on the Week 2 Activity Sheet for more information.

How to Evaluate This Week's Assignment

This assignment involves many different skills: research, descriptive writing, spatial organization, and a good imagination! Pay attention to how your students work through each step of the process—taking notes, checking reference materials, looking for inspiration in Mara, Daughter of the Nile. If these behaviors are not independent yet, provide as much guidance as needed, but be sure your students complete the actual writing on their own.

The following sample rubric will help you determine how well your students wrote their entries. Feel free to adjust the rubric to meet the individual needs of your students.

And suddenly I knew what their secret must be. For this, I was sure, was a battle song, to be sung only in time of war. Jotham had said they had no leader. It seemed that they had found one.

Mechanics Practice

Do you remember the purpose verbs serve in a sentence? Verbs express actions or states of being. While nouns are the people, places, and things in a sentence, verbs tell what those people, places, and things do or are. Action verbs describe just that—the action.

For example:
Nate rode his bike around the block.
Milind fixes computers in his spare time.
We eat dinner with Nan and Chris every Saturday.

Helping (or auxiliary) verbs help control verb tenses when paired with another verb, and they express a sense of necessity, certainty, probability, or possibility. For example:

The doctor will come soon.
There might be trouble next door.
Elvis has left the building.

Here is a list of common helping verbs:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Helping Verbs</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>has</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>should</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Read the passage below and then answer the questions that follow.

After we had sung the final note, our voices hung for a moment in the frigid air. It didn't matter which side of the wire we were on. We all thought of the places we called home, and for a moment forgot we were waiting for daylight when the fighting and the war must resume.

1. Look at the passage above and write all of the action verbs you find:
____________________________________________
____________________________________________

2. Write the helping verb that modifies each of the following verbs from the sample paragraph:
________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________

3. Use s to identify each verb as singular, p for plural.
______ was ______ write
______ were ______ gulp
______ writes ______ gulps

Spatial Organization

Writers use spatial organization in descriptive text. Spatial organization arranges details of a place or thing in a logical order. If you were to describe your bedroom, you might start with the first thing a person would see when entering your room. Then you might move clockwise around the room and describe the items in order as if the person were circling your room. You would end with the person leaving the room. If you didn’t describe objects in a logical order, you could easily confuse the reader about where objects are located in your room.

In the example below, Mara and the princess Inanni go outside and down the stairs of the palace for the first time. The author describes the setting using spatial organization. The writer not only describes the storerooms and workshops but also includes what the characters see in those rooms as they pass:

At the bottom they found themselves in the first of a series of walled courts and gardens, through which they passed without encountering anyone more frightening than a few slaves or hurrying servants. Inanni began to relax. She peered curiously at the storerooms and shedlike workshops, catching glimpses of basket makers and glass blowers still at work, of hundreds of stacked wine jars, mountains of baled linen, the neat rows of a kitchen garden. There were vineyards, date groves, curving flower beds in which scarlet sage and larkspur glowed against dark tamarisk trees. As they entered a broad paved area surrounded by weavers’ stalls, Inanni gave a start of joy and stopped.²

Use spatial organization to describe your favorite place in one paragraph. Perhaps this place is somewhere near home or at home. It could be a place where you go to think or to relax. Maybe your favorite place is a family camping spot or someplace you’ve only visited one time but would like to return to someday. Decide on the order in which you want to write about that place. Will you describe it from a specific perspective? For example, if your favorite place is sitting on a rock looking down from a mountain, you would describe the scene from that point. If you use yourself as the focal point, describe what is closest to you and work your description in points that get farther and farther away from you. Will you describe from top to bottom or from side to side?

Use the chart to plan and then write your description. If needed, continue your paragraph on another piece of paper.

Introduction:
Give an overview of what you will describe.

Plan of Organization:
Make a list of the details you plan to describe for your spatial description.

Write Your Description:
Use sensory details and spatial organization.

Research for Travel Journal

In the book Mara, Daughter of the Nile by Eloise Jarvis McGraw, the setting begins in Menfe (Memphis), Egypt. Prior to the story’s opening, Thutmose III reigned as king in the 1400’s BC. The Egyptians built many structures before that time period. Mara, the protagonist, travels up the Nile River to Thebes, which was the capital of Ancient Egypt. As she travels, what does Mara see? What was the setting really like?

Travel back to Ancient Egypt and take the role of a scribe who is traveling up the Nile River from Memphis to the city of Thebes.

Look at the map of the Nile River, the longest river in the world. To travel from Memphis to Thebes, which direction would you go?

Tomorrow, you will write a travel journal entry about your trip. Today, identify and write an interesting fact or two about the following places. Feel free to look in outside resources if needed:

Pyramids of Giza

The Sphinx

Write the Travel Journal

People keep travel journals to record their journeys. This helps travelers remember more about their experiences and share their memories with friends and family. Historians recreate events with the aid of travel journals. Write a travel journal entry about two of the places you researched yesterday.

As you write, concentrate on describing the places as if you were actually there. Describe your journey using spatial organization. Give your readers mental images of the scenes.

Use your five senses to give your reader a sense for the atmosphere. What does it sound like, smell like, taste like, feel like, and look like? Mara sees crocodiles and smells fish mixed with mud.

If you’re traveling south, can you tell the reader on which side of the boat you saw certain objects?

Use colorful adjectives and action verbs in your description. Write at least one paragraph about two of the places.

Day 11

Read through the dictation passage with your students. Have them note any words, capitalizations, or matters of punctuation that require special attention. On the fifth day, you will read it aloud as your students write it down.

“There are more coming to join us every day. Someday there’ll be enough. Rosh asks of them all just one thing. They must hate the Romans, and be willing to go on fighting till the last cursed one of them is driven from the land and Israel is free. We live only for that. And so will you.”

Mechanics Practice

Today your students will learn about pronouns and antecedents, the gender of pronouns, and how pronouns may be used in a sentence. For more information, see the Week 3 Activity Sheet.

This week we discuss subject pronouns. Pronouns may also serve as objects, which we will discuss further when your students learn about transitive verbs and direct objects.

Answers:

“We” refers to Zachary and Xander
1. he; his; his; him
2. his; her; their
3. He; They; I

Optional Dictation

Daniel stiffened. But he noticed, against his will, the heaving sides of the overridden animal, the streaks of foam on the glossy neck. The beast too was helpless in the hands of the Roman. He could not deny it water. He lifted the bowl and held it steady while the animal quenched its thirst.

Point of View

Help your students to develop good habits in using the appropriate point of view. If you find the words you, yours, or yourself in your students’ writing, delete the words and have your students rewrite the sentences using third person point of view (see the Activity Sheet for more information). If your students switch point of view in the middle of the paper, point it out and work with them to keep the point of view consistent. Today, have them rewrite the paragraphs under “Point of View” on the Week 3 Activity Sheet with the assigned point of view.

Answers:

1. He was driving home as a great snowstorm began to rage. He was worried. Everything around him was turning white and confusing. He could barely see where he was going. Suddenly his car stalled. He was far from home and didn’t really know where he was.
2. This was the hardest, most difficult thing she’d ever had to do in her life. She received an important medal, but she knew that she really did not deserve it. She stood in front of a large audience, many of them old friends who loved her. She was supposed to give an acceptance speech, but instead of accepting the medal, she decided to confess that another person deserved it.

How to Evaluate This Week’s Assignment

This assignment is a fun opportunity for your students to work with formal language for a practical purpose. Remind them that the articles must make sense overall, so they shouldn’t get so caught up in the language that they lose the meaning. It can be easy to slip into second-person point of view on this assignment, so check to see if your students are using words like “family members,” “he”, and “she”.

The following sample rubric will help you determine how well your students wrote their peace treaty. Feel free to adjust the rubric to meet the individual needs of your students.

Dictation Passage

“There are more coming to join us every day. Someday there’ll be enough. Rosh asks of them all just one thing. They must hate the Romans, and be willing to go on fighting till the last cursed one of them is driven from the land and Israel is free. We live only for that. And so will you.”

Mechanics Practice

Wouldn’t it be awkward if our language didn’t have pronouns? For example, if we didn’t have pronouns, you might hear someone say something like this:

“Mom,” asked Zachary, “May Zachary go to Xander’s house to play on Xander’s new trampoline? Xander and Zachary would have so much fun! Xander’s mom said it would be okay.”

Pronouns are words—like I, me, he, she, they, it, mine, yours, etc.—that are used in place of common or proper nouns. In order for pronouns to make sense, they must follow a common or proper noun. For example:

“Mom,” asked Zachary, “May I go to Xander’s house to play on his new trampoline? We would have so much fun! His mom said it would be okay.”

The noun a pronoun refers to is called its antecedent. For example, in the sentence:

“May I go to Xander’s house to play on his new trampoline?”

…Xander is the antecedent to which the pronoun his refers. Who does the pronoun we refer to in our example?

Personal pronouns, which are listed above, are the most common type of pronouns. Possessive pronouns show possession or ownership. They may be used alone or before a noun, and they act like an adjective:

This cupcake is mine.
Is that your coat?

If a pronoun serves as the subject of a sentence, we call it a subject pronoun:

He is a great friend.
She rode her bike to the park.

Keep in mind that as you write pronouns, they must agree with the gender of the subject. That means you shouldn’t say she or her if the antecedent of the pronoun is male. Instead, write:

Anna laid her books on the table.

1. What pronouns do you see in the passage below? Circle them.

An hour later he was crossing the worn stone wharfs to the Beetle’s anchorage. Nekonkh hung over the gunwale, his arms propped wide, his shoulders burnished copper in the brilliant sunlight. Every line of him spelled anxiety. Sheftu stepped into the cool shadow of the hull, swung onto the rope ladder and climbed up through the blue-green dancing reflections into the glare of sun on deck.

2. Complete the following with pronouns that agree with the given antecedents.

Michael carried ____________ ball glove home.
Catherine mailed three cards to __________ Grandma.
Rodney and Harriet went to __________ son’s play.

3. Complete the following with subject pronouns.

_________ washed the dishes for his mother.
_________ took pictures of their project.
_________ washed my car today.

Point of View

When you write a personal narrative (or story), you use the first person point of view and you use the pronoun I.

When you write for other people you have a choice to write in second person or third person. As a rule, you should either write in first or third person but not in second. The second person point of view should only be used when writing directions for someone to follow. You will have very few assignments where you have to write directions.

The majority of your assignments will require you to write in first person or third person. If you are writing about someone other than yourself, write in third person point of view and use the pronouns he, she, or it, but never the pronoun you.

If you are writing about yourself you will use the pronoun I but never the pronoun you. If you begin a composition in one point of view, do not switch points of view partway through. For example, if you begin in first person, do not switch to third person.

The following paragraphs are written in second person point of view. Rewrite them in third person point of view. Use a name or the pronouns he or she.

1. You are driving home and a great snowstorm begins to rage. You are worried. Everything around you is white and confusing. You can barely see where you are going. Suddenly your car stalls. You are far from home and don’t really know where you are.

2. This is the hardest, most difficult thing you’ve ever had to do in your life. You received an important medal, but you know that you really do not deserve it. You stand in front of a large audience, many of them old friends who love you. You are supposed to give an acceptance speech, but instead of accepting the medal, you decide to confess that another person deserves it.

Pre-write a Peace Treaty

Around 1275 BC the Hittites and the Egyptians established the first written peace treaty. They signed the treaty after the Battle of Kadesh, which ended in a draw.

When they wrote the treaty, both nations defined their agreement and committed to support one another. Because of the treaty, Egypt sent food and supplies to the Hittites, who experienced a drought about twenty years later.

The agreement includes eighteen articles. Each article described what both sides would do for each other in a certain situation. The Hittites composed their treaty in clay using cuneiform, while the Egyptians composed their treaty on papyrus using hieroglyphs.
Tomorrow you will write a peace treaty for your family or for all families in general. Today, make a list of issues your treaty will discuss, and possible solutions to them. Focus on issues that cause conflict in families.

Here are some suggestions, but you may want to be more specific:

- Distribute chores fairly.
- Share a room, the bathroom, television, etc.
- Save/spend/earn money.
- Borrow personal possessions.
- Settle disagreements.
- How to entertain friends who are guests.

Use your notes from yesterday to write your peace treaty today. Be sure to use the third person point of view. Use action verbs to create the active voice. Write at least five articles (or rules) of declaration. Make sure that each article is fair for all members of the family. Add a title to your treaty and sign it to make it official.

Readers Weeks 1–3: Mara, Daughter of the Nile

Day 1
Chapters 1–2

Setting
Egypt; 1400s BC

Overview
Mara, a slave, becomes a spy for Queen Hatshepsut (1503–1482 BC), the pharaoh, whose extravagant building projects and excursions inflict heavy taxes on the Egyptians. Shortly thereafter, Sheftu, a young nobleman, enlists Mara's help as a spy for Thutmose, the true king, a man imprisoned by the powerful Queen. Mara prefers to help the King, but must continue to serve the Queen, lest she be sold. A traitor to the King finally betrays Mara, and Sheftu, thinking Mara betrayed him, although he loves her, seeks to kill her. When he discovers that Mara serves the king as whole-heartedly as he does, Sheftu purposefully walks into a trap to save her, and then the revolution occurs, quickly and easily. Thutmose takes the throne, Hatshepsut drinks poison, and Sheftu, now Count, marries Mara.

Cultural Literacy

Use the following words as you discuss today's reading to enhance your student’s understanding of the story.

- Set: or Seth; an ancient god of the desert, storms, darkness and chaos. [chap. 1]
- shenti: a loincloth or scarf worn by men, wrapped around their waists and held by a belt. [chap. 1]
- kheft: a lost soul or demon. [chap. 1]
- Kush: a kingdom south of Egypt. Pharaohs took control of Kush during the New Kingdom, so a "son of Kush" would be someone from this land. Since they were a conquered people group, an Egyptian would consider this phrase less than flattering. [chap. 1]
- Hatshepsut (1503–1482 BC): the fourth female pharaoh in Egyptian history. The daughter of King Thutmose I and his chief wife, Queen Ahmose, Hatshepsut married her half-brother, King Thutmose II. When Thutmose died unexpectedly about 1490 BC, Hatshepsut's stepson, Thutmose III, inherited the throne. But because he was too young to rule, Hatshepsut served as regent (temporary ruler). Within a few years, and with the support of the priests of the god Amon, Hatshepsut took control of Kush during the New Kingdom, so a "son of Kush" would be someone from this land. Since they were a conquered people group, an Egyptian would consider this phrase less than flattering. [chap. 1]

Thutmose III: Egyptian Pharaoh that reigned from 1504–1450 BC. Thutmose III was son of Thutmose II, and son-in-law to Queen Hatshepsut, as he married her daughter—his own half-sister. As an adult ruler, Thutmose III conducted 17 successful campaigns which served him a position as the most successful Pharaoh ever—in military terms. He extended Egyptian territory and power considerably, into Mesopotamia and Nubia. The conquered territories were put under control of vassal kings and chiefs, who paid high taxes to Egypt. He extended the temple at Karnak, as well as constructed new monuments at Abydos, Aswan, Heliopolis, and Memphis. His mummy was found in 1881 at Dayru I-Bahri. He was succeeded by Amenhotep II. [chap. 1]

- gamin: street boy. [chap. 2]
- scarab: a stone beetle used as a talisman or ornament. [chap. 2]

To Discuss After You Read

Q: Once Nekonkh realizes he’s been speaking poorly of Hatshepsut, what does he do? Why? [chap. 1]
A: he denies making a statement that he would like to overthrow the Pharaoh and immediately makes statements to show he supports her. He does this because it was treason to speak against the Queen, and the punishment for doing so was harsh.

Q: What makes Mara a valuable spy? [chap. 2]
A: she speaks Babylonian, reads and writes well, is sharp-witted, does not look like a slave, is proud, and desires freedom.

Khofra mentions that the Euphrates "flows the wrong way" (p. 26). Since the Euphrates flows in a south-easterly direction, whereas the Nile River flows in a northward direction, a river that flows in nearly the opposite direction would seem backwards to him.

Day 2
Chapters 3–4

Cultural Literacy

- carnelian: pale, red quartz. [chap. 4]
- gambits: moves early in a game in which a player sacrifices lesser pieces in order to obtain an advantageous position. [chap. 4]

To Discuss After You Read

Q: Why did Sheftu threaten Mara at the end of their conversation? [chap. 4]
A: because Mara said she intended to discover his secrets if she could—clearly Sheftu would rather remain secretive and somewhat anonymous.

Day 3  Chapter 5

To Discuss After You Read

Q: Why do you think Mara is not happy with her second job? [chap. 5]
A: possible: she is beginning to like Sheftu; she dislikes the Queen's extravagance; perhaps she is intrigued by the idea of doing something for Egypt rather than just for herself.

Q: At the end of the chapter, who do you think has the upper hand—Mara or Sheftu? Why? [chap. 5]
A: realistically, Mara still does—she already knows the name of the other member in Pharaoh's court that is leading the rebellion, and her present course of action hasn't changed from the time she boarded the ship.

Day 4  Chapters 6–7

Cultural Literacy

El Karnak ruins (Thebes), Egypt: Thebes is located along the Nile River at the site of what is now the city of Luxor. [chap. 6] loggia: a roofed open gallery, especially at an upper story overlooking an open court. [chap. 7]

To Discuss After You Read

Q: How did the wharfs of Abydos differ from those at Menfe? Why? [chap. 6]
A: they had more funeral barges because the god Osiris was thought to be buried in Abydos, and all who could afford it would arrange for their funeral processions to take a pilgrimage to this “Gate of the Underworld” before their entombment.

Q: How does Mara keep cool in the Egyptian heat? [chap. 6]
A: she does not wear wool except in the cool nights; wears thin, light garments; stays slender; sleeps on an ebony headrest, not a hot pillow.

Day 5  Chapters 8–9

To Discuss After You Read

Q: Why did Hatshepsut like what she saw in Inanni? [chap. 8]
A: because she knew her half-brother, the King, would NOT like marrying Inanni.

Q: What was clever about Sheftu's response to the order from Hatshepsut? [chap. 8]
A: he gave praise to Pharaoh without specifying which pharaoh he meant.

Q: Why is Mara's meeting with Thutmose difficult? [chap. 9]
A: she must not only speak in two languages and carry on two conversations, but Inanni's hopes and Thutmose's pacing and expression made her job more difficult.

Q: Why was Mara concerned about the message she was to take to Sheftu? [chap. 9]
A: because he was being asked to rob the tomb of a pharaoh—a crime not only punishable in the human world but also believed to anger the ka of the departed one—something Egyptians believed would bring harm to tomb robbers.

Day 6  Chapters 10–11

To Discuss After You Read

Q: What relieves Inanni at the end of her long day? [chap. 10]
A: she will not marry Thutmose, she can return to Canaan and her brothers, and she will visit the Syrian woman in the Court of the Weavers.

Q: How could Mara tell by looking around the Queen's court who the most important people were? [chap. 11]
A: the more important a person was—those the Queen valued—stood closer to her throne.

Q: What does Mara learn during her audience with her master? [chap. 11]
A: Thutmose's servants are all loyal to the Queen.

Day 7  Chapter 12

To Discuss After You Read

Q: Think about the steps Mara had to take before she met with Sheftu again. What does it tell you about the organization of the rebellion that is brewing? [chap. 12]
A: it's highly organized—there seems to be many supporters with useful ways they can contribute.

Q: Why do you think Sheftu goes by Sashai at the Inn of the Falcon? [chap. 12]
A: to conceal his identity to those he's working with. In case some were captured, they wouldn't be able to identify their true leader.

Day 8  Chapter 13

Cultural Literacy

languid: slow, sluggish. [chap. 13]

chicanery: deception, trickery. [chap. 13]

guile: deceitful, cunning. [chap. 13]

insouciance: lighthearted, unconcern. [chap. 13]

To Discuss After You Read

Q: What does Mara learn about the proprietors of the Inn of the Falcon? [chap. 13]
A: the inn keeper's wife was Sheftu's childhood nurse, and her husband was the head of his father's stables.
Q: How does Thutmose prepare to take the throne? [chap. 13]
A: he stages a miracle where, during a festival, “Amon” proclaims him pharaoh—"the people remember and think it true; the priests are mostly on his side, as are many young nobles and commoners concerned with the state of the country"

Q: What do you think of Sahure, the juggler? Do you trust him? Why or why not? [chap. 13]
A: possible: he presses for information in a rather sly way: Sheftu is clearly not completely forthcoming with him, though he was claimed as useful

Q: What has Sheftu learned in the last six years about mankind? Do you think he is correct? [chap. 14]
A: no man or woman lives whom gold cannot buy—only the prices differ

Q: Do you think Hatshepsut is extravagant? Why or why not? [chap. 14]
A: yes—This chapter describes obelisks the Queen had added to the temple of Amon. They were 97 feet tall “needles of stone,” cut from single blocks of granite, and so tall the roof of the hall had to be removed so they could be installed. Once there, the queen thought they were too dull so she ordered them covered with priceless electrum—all for her own glory

Q: Why do you think Sheftu asked the priest to obtain the Royal Seal? [chap. 14]
A: when tombs were shut, priests would seal the door shut and mark the seal with a particular mark so it would be easy to tell if the tomb had been disturbed. Once Sheftu raided the old Pharaoh’s tomb, they would have more time to finish their plans if the tomb looked as if it was never disturbed, so they’d need the Royal Seal with the right mark on it to reseal the door

Q: Why do you think of Sahure, the juggler? Do you trust him? Why or why not? [chap. 14]
A: yes—This chapter describes obelisks the Queen had added to the temple of Amon. They were 97 feet tall “needles of stone,” cut from single blocks of granite, and so tall the roof of the hall had to be removed so they could be installed. Once there, the queen thought they were too dull so she ordered them covered with priceless electrum—all for her own glory

Q: Even queens need to acquire gold—we all have limited dollars. What does she spend her gold on? [chap. 15]
A: to cover the obelisks in electrum

Q: How does Mara deliver her message, even though the spies were not dismissed? [chap. 15]
A: she draws symbols of the message onto a vase design

Q: Do you think the king’s opinion of Inanni has changed at all? Why or why not? [chap. 15]
A: somewhat—she admired his drawings of vases so he is beginning to see her as more that a “barbarian”

Q: Why is it important for the king to become pharaoh? [chap. 15]
A: for Egypt, for the sake of the people

Q: What do you think of Sahure, the juggler? Do you trust him? Why or why not? [chap. 17]
A: possible: he presses for information in a rather sly way: Sheftu is clearly not completely forthcoming with him, though he was claimed as useful

Q: Why is it important for the king to become pharaoh? [chap. 17]
A: for Egypt, for the sake of the people

Q: Why does Pesiur’s jab about Sheftu’s notice of Mara bother Sheftu? [chap. 17]
A: he worries that his meetings with Mara and the Canaan-ite princess have been noticed, and that the feelings he has for Mara that he thought he’d kept hidden had been noticed by a casual observer

Q: How does Sheftu enter the Valley of the Kings? [chap. 17]
A: he arrives with a priest; they claim they’ve heard reports of tomb robbery; one guard believes them, one does not, and this one follows them, even though his duty ends in another half hour

Q: What does Sheftu do to the diligent guard? [chap. 17]
A: at first, he strangles him to knock him out, hoping they can send him away on Nekonkh's boat until the revolution is over, but the guard starts to escape so Sheftu has to kill him.

Q: In addition to Sheftu and companions, fear of their gods and the knowledge they have of crime they are about to commit, what else could make the trip inside the tomb a stressful experience for these characters? [chap. 18]
A: it is incredibly dark, their one torch doesn't seem to push the darkness back very far; it is hot, the air is stale and probably hard to breathe—they risk running out of air as they work deep underground; the tomb is built like a maze, intended to be confusing to make it harder to plunder; they realize as their torch dies that they don't have another torch with them.

Cultural Literacy
flagon: a large pitcher made from metal or pottery, with a handle and a spout, and often a lid. [chap. 20]

To Discuss After You Read

Q: How does Mara feel about Sahure? Why do you think this is so? [chap. 19]
A: she loathes him and she’s afraid of him; Possible: because she’s nearly almost run into him once as she’s fulfilling the role of her other identity, she doesn’t trust him to keep quiet about her if it would serve his purposes better, he seems to constantly pry and doesn’t easily take “no” for an answer.

Q: How does Sheftu respond to Mara’s mistake of keeping the ring? [chap. 19]
A: his words seem to say he doesn’t think any more of the matter, but he lets go of her hand as he speaks, as though he’s not sure he trusts her again. Even at the end of the chapter, Mara is unsure if the issue is over or not.

Q: Why did Sheftu comment to Nekonkh on the riverboat “Till now, I understood your allegiance to be to myself and to the king—and no one else. Was I mistaken?” [chap. 20]
A: because Nekonkh had been defending Mara’s actions, and Sheftu needed to remind him that their cause was really more important than another player—should that player be a spy for the queen.

Q: How does Sheftu plot to uncover Mara’s treachery? [chap. 20]
A: Nekonkh tells her the “ whereabouts” of the gold in the presence of others; if the location is raided, he will know she is a spy for the other side.

Q: What potential problems does the trap have?
A: Nekonkh wasn’t told to tell Mara privately. If another person who is unfaithful to the cause overhears, they could raid the ship, even if Mara didn’t give up her information.
Q: How does slavery affect Mara and her relationships with others, such as Innani the princess, Reshed the guard, or Sheftu?

Q: What does Mara learn from Innani (the princess)?

Q: Juxtaposition means to place close together or side by side, especially for comparison or contrast. In literature, juxtaposition occurs when one theme or idea or person is parallel to another. The author of Mara, Daughter of the Nile juxtaposes the "daughter of the Nile" (Mara) with the "daughter of the sun god" (Hatshepsut). Compare and contrast these women: think about their titles and origins, their personalities, their view of Egypt, their positions, and their value of other people. How are they the same and how are they different? If they are the same at some point in the book, but different at another point of the book, describe that.

Appendix 2: Recommendations for Teaching Writing

Since we know that no two budding writers will grow and develop at the same pace, we have designed the writing program in this guide to be flexible. We also understand that parents may feel unprepared to teach writing. Some parents feel like they’re not good writers themselves. Other parents may write well, but do not understand how to communicate what they know in a meaningful way to their children. To all these parents, we say, “Don’t worry! You can do it.” The following suggestions will help you know how to use the tools we provide and, if necessary, how to modify this program to best meet your and your students’ needs.

Allow Students to Write at Their Own Pace

In the same way that we wouldn’t teach a toddler to ride a bike with a 10-speed on a nice steep hill, we don’t expect beginning writers to produce polished work on a tight schedule either. If you find that the pace we present in this guide is too much for your children, simply allow your children to work through the assignments at their own pace.

Start with our first writing assignment in Week 1. Ask your children to work on it for a set amount of time each day as it fits into your daily schedule. For older children, this could be part of their independent work time, but be careful not to let it consume all of their time. Of course we’re happy if they’re enjoying a project and don’t want to put it down, but don’t hesitate to set a timer so that they can have time to accomplish other work, too. A timer might also help when they’re struggling with an assignment, so they know that there is an end in sight to their writing time.

If your children can complete some of the brainstorming activities in the time we suggest, have them do so. But we’d understand if the creative writing portion takes longer. Therefore, if your children seem to need more days to complete the assignments than outlined in our guide, give it to them. Don’t feel as though you have to move on to our next assignment if they’re still working on the last one. Writing is a creative process and at this level, please let the creative juices flow.

If you’d like to spend a day reviewing your children’s work with them when they complete an assignment, consider it time well spent. It is during these review sessions that you can reinforce the grammar and mechanical skills they learned that week by correcting issues and pointing out things they’ve done well in their own writing. You could then cement lessons learned in your discussion by having them use your edits to write a final draft. Simply give them the time they need to complete each task successfully. Then, pick up with the next assignment in the guide in whatever week you happen to be in when you’re ready.

If you start to feel like this slower paced method might jeopardize the variety of assignments your children are exposed to, or causes you to miss assignments you think your children might enjoy, use the Scope and Sequence list in Section Four to help you vary the assignments and select a more appropriate topic from another week. At this age, we want writing to be enjoyable, so select topics you think will most inspire your children. And remember, the more practice they get recording their thoughts on paper, the easier it will be for them when they’re older and do need to produce polished work on a deadline.

The Writing Process

Coaching the Writing Process

For their first drafts, ask nothing more of your children than to simply put their thoughts on paper. At this stage, anything goes. If you’re working with them, resist the urge to correct their spelling or revise their sentence structure, and help them do the same—you will have the opportunity to edit later. Build their writing confidence and show you value their creativity by giving them the freedom to “just write,” and not interrupt their creative flow. Pay more attention to the fact that they’re meeting the requirements of the assignment: Are they successfully writing about the topic you suggested? Are they overcoming obstacles? Did they show good attention to the fact that they’re meeting the requirements of the assignment? Are they successfully writing about the topic you suggested? Are they overcoming obstacles? Did they show good attention to the fact that they’re meeting the requirements of the assignment? Are they successfully writing about the topic you suggested? Are they overcoming obstacles? Did they show good on paper what they dreamed up in their heads. For now, your children probably speak better than they write. They form sentences correctly and can “hear” when something isn’t right, so simply help them align their writing to their speaking proficiency. More importantly, praise them when they catch and correct their own mistakes.

For example you might say “Oh! You just paused there, what kind of punctuation do you think you might need?” or “Let’s sound out the spelling of ‘incredible’ together.” Or, “let’s look that word up in the dictionary…” Practice review skills together that you’d like them to be able to use on their own later. Also, help them think through holes in their description or story line. If you see a conspicuous gap, ask them to stop reading and ask them questions about the story that any interested reader would have. If they can tell you answers that help to fill the gap, help them write a few sentences to include this information in the story for other readers to enjoy.

Simply modeling the right way to do something is a very effective teaching tool at this age. When you find mistakes in their written work, pick and choose which ones you want them to help you correct, but sometimes simply demonstrate the right way to spell something or word a phrase in a sentence by quietly writing it on their paper as they read. Remember, they’ll see your correction and write it correctly when they rewrite their final drafts, so the more you can make your review session about showing value what they created and less about making a big deal over every mistake, the more they’ll enjoy reviewing their papers with you…and the more they’ll like the writing process.

Think about how you’d like each child to handle words they repeatedly misspell. If it’s a word like “said” that they will use frequently now and in the future, you may ask them to rewrite it correctly on their rough draft each time it appears to help them memorize the correct spelling. If the word is lengthy, correct the spelling together for the first instance, and then simply circle the misspelled word each time it appears so they know to reference the first time you corrected it when they write the rough draft.

We strongly encourage you to review your children’s writing with them, rather than edit it yourself and hand it back to them later. By walking your children through the editing process each time, you will teach them how to edit and revise their own papers, how to catch their own mistakes, and how to look up correct answers on their own. As the old adage goes: “Give a man a fish and you’ll feed him for a day. Teach him how to fish and you’ll feed him for a lifetime.” By working with your children to edit and revise, you’ll be teaching them to fish, or, more accurately: to write!

How DO I Evaluate Writing Assignments?

Using Sonlight’s Rubrics

We understand that the idea of evaluating your children’s writing may be just as overwhelming for you as it was for them to write it. And yes, evaluating writing can be highly subjective. Therefore, we’ve included evaluation checklists or Rubrics for most assignments in your weekly notes that will help you focus your thoughts on the most important skills each assignment addressed. These rubrics should help you make the evaluation process more concrete and less subjective. And by the time you get to the evaluation stage, you should be very familiar with your children’s work and the skills addressed because you’ve coached their progress along the way. Feel free to adjust or modify our rubrics at any time if you feel your child worked on skills we didn’t include on our list.

Much of literary critique is subjective, but we understand that sometimes it’s helpful to have a concrete way to help you focus your critique. A rubric is a simple form that will help you give point values to certain characteristics of an assignment.

At this age, we want to emphasize the writing process more than the final result. Do you remember when they were learning to talk? If you pointed to that colorful floating orb in the sky and said “Look, a balloon!” and they repeated “Bay-yoon!” did you correct their pronunciation and then give them a bad grade? Probably not. We hope you laughed, and simply said it again the right way. Even if they called it a “bay-yoon” for the next three months, we imagine you simply kept presenting them with the correct pronunciation and eventually they learned it.

Please think of learning to write as “learning to speak on paper.” Since hopefully your children have had a few years to practice writing by this point, it’s okay to start honing their technique. Strive to teach your children with the same small steps, and the same gentle redirections—slowly, over time. Be careful not to expect too much too quickly. It will come. Celebrate the small accomplishments, and keep engaging your children with examples of good writing (just like the ones in the books you’re reading), and talk about what could be improved when you come across lesser samples.
Creating your own Rubrics

Please note that the items we chose to emphasize on our sample are just ideas of things you might want to include on a rubric of your own. As their teacher, you will know how your children are writing—where they shine and what they need to polish up—so be sure to include both potential challenges and potential successes on rubrics you compose.

When you create a rubric, first draft a list of all the things you hope the assignment will accomplish, or you hope your child will learn or practice as they complete the assignment. Sometimes it’s helpful to list skills by category, so you’re sure you’ve thought of everything you want to evaluate.

Next, assign a point value for each item, giving more points to skills you want to weigh more heavily (or see as more important). Add up all of the points in the rubric to determine the number of points that will equal 100%. After that, simply read through your children’s work, thinking about each point on your rubric as you go. Divide the number of points your children earned by the number of points possible to determine a percentage.

When your children are older, it may help to hand them a copy of your evaluation rubric when they first begin an assignment. Isn’t it easier to hit the target when you can see what you should be aiming for? Afford this same opportunity to your children in the future when they work on writing assignments.

At this age, you may be able to let your children write their first drafts independently, but they will probably still benefit from an “Editorial Review” session with you before they draft their final copies. Later in the year, you might put together an Editing Checklist with your children if you’d like them to begin editing their own papers independently as well. Draft such a checklist together, and be sure to include both basic content you always want them to check, and common mistakes you know they’re still working on. Most importantly, use rubrics to help you more clearly gauge the areas in which your children could use more work and revise your instruction accordingly.

WriteAtHome™

Over the years, we have noticed that many parents who otherwise feel confident and competent to teach their children at home nonetheless experience some anxiety when it comes to teaching them how to write well. Such writing-related anxiety often stems from a feeling that writing is not one of their strengths, combined with the fact that judging “good” writing is a somewhat-subjective endeavor. While 2+2 will always equal 4, the quality of a particular paragraph can often be open for debate.

Does this describe you? If so, don’t worry—you’re not alone. What you feel is perfectly normal. But let us reassure you about a couple of things. First, you probably write better than you think you do. But even if writing is not your strong suit, you don’t have to be an exceptional writer to help your children learn to write well.

Second, don’t be afraid of the evaluation process. Trust your instincts. You know when something just doesn’t sound right. Be supportive and encouraging and work with your children to make their assignments better. Never forget that writing is a collaborative process. Even professional writers rarely get things perfect on the first try.

Some parents, though, may reach a point where they feel like they and/or their children need additional help. That is why Sonlight has partnered with WriteAtHome™ to provide a variety of services to parents and their children who want to learn to write better.
